NATIONAL AIR RACE PROGRAM STARTS AT CLEVELAND SUNDAY

Air Exhibit Feature Of Affair; Many Races Planned

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 24.—Achievements of the aeronautic industry during its first twenty-five years were assembled here today to open the 1929 national air races and aeronautical exposition.

Aviation was the password—and will be for the next ten days—as famous designers and builders of aircraft, celebrated wartime aces, and noted civilian fliers gathered here to participate in the "air classic of the century."

Meanwhile two groups of air race contestants were speeding east from two widely separated starting points on the Pacific coast. Fourteen women were participating in the first "Ladybird Derby" were at Wichita, Kansas, past the halfway mark in the series of hops from Santa Monica, Calif., to Cleveland.

Prizes totaling $25,000 drew nineteen women pilots to the starting line last Sunday. Finish of the derby will be Monday afternoon.

Nine airmen took off from Swan Island airport, Portland, Ore., yesterday on the first leg of the Portland-Cleveland derby. They were at Spokane today awaiting the starting signal to continue their flight over the northwest. They are competing for $6,000 in prizes and $4 additional several thousand dollars in lap prize money. The race through the northwest will end here Tuesday afternoon.

A third derby, the Miami-Miami Beach to Cleveland Derby, for $5,500 in prizes, ten valuable trophies, and several thousands of dollars lap prize money, was scheduled to get underway today and finish here Tuesday afternoon.

Other derbies are the all-Ohio derby which starts tomorrow at 1 p. m., the Philadelphia-to-Cleveland derby, the Oakland, California-to-Cleveland derby, Canadian derby, the rim-of-Ohio derby, and a non-stop race from the Pacific coast to Cleveland.

Air race executives anticipate a crowd of more than 100,000 persons for the official opening of the air race program Sunday afternoon when the participants in the all-Ohio derby take off from municipal airport. Other events of the afternoon include a number of closed course events—short races for various types of planes—and parachute jumping contests.

An innovation this year in the majority of the shorter races will be the racing starts in use. The so-called "race horse" starts will necessitate a force of sixteen starters, sixteen timers, and sixteen judges at the home pylon alone.

The blare of bands and roar of motors overhead will herald the opening ceremony at the airport at 1:00 p. m. today. Half an hour later Public Auditorium will open its doors to an exhibit of more than $3,000,000 worth of aircraft and aeronautical accessories.

A fleet of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company blimps will escort the five-mile-long flower pageant from University Circle through downtown streets to Public Auditorium. Following this key to the city will be presented by City Manager William R. Hopkins and Mayor John D. Marshall to the national air race and aeronautical exposition corporation.

TO BROADCAST AIR RACES FOR CROWDS

CLEVELAND, Aug. 24.—Spectators of the national air races next week will be kept informed of the positions of the racing planes around the closed course through a short wave broadcasting system being installed by the Cleveland Wireless Association.

Radio stations will be located at each of the three steel pylons that mark the corners of the triangular course. As the planes swing around the pylons, operators at each station will relay an account of the race to the main grandstand.

The pylon towers are five miles apart, and spectators will not be able to see the planes from the grandstand at all times.

SENATOR TYSON OF TENNESSEE DIES SATURDAY; DISTINGUISHED IN WAR

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24.—Senator Lawrence D. Tyson, 67, of Knoxville, Tenn., who has been under treatment at Mamresia Mahor Sanitarium near here for several years, died at the sanitarium today following a sudden relapse.

Tyson, who was just completing his first term as Democratic senator from Tennessee, was born in Greenville, S. C. He was graduated from West Point in 1883, served several years at Indian posts in the far west and was detailed as commandant of cadets at the University of Tennessee at Knoxville, in 1891.

While at the university he studied law and later began practice of law in a firm at Knoxville of which Associate Justice Sanford of the U. S. Supreme Court was a member.

President McKinley in 1898 commissioned Tyson a colonel in the Sixth U. S. Volunteers which saw service in Porto Rico.

During the World War Tyson distinguished himself as brigadier general commanding a brigade of Tennessee and Carolina troops attached to the "Old Hickory" division which saw service on the Hindenburg line in France.

RUTH ELDER WILL MARRY CAMP

WICHITA, Kas., Aug. 24.—Ruth Elder, trans-Atlantic flier and movie actress, today confirmed rumors of her engagement to Walter Camp, Jr., of New York. Miss Elder told the United Press that she first met Camp in Hollywood two months ago.

Camp, the aviatrix said, is now enroute to New York on a business trip. She will join him in New York after completion of the California-Cleveland women's air race.

Although Miss Elder refused to name the date of the wedding, she intimated it would be soon.

BOTH NATIONS MOVE TROOPS TO BORDER; CLASH IS EXPECTED

Guerilla Warfare Continues Along Manchuria Border

PEIPING, Aug. 24.—Great anxiety was felt here today in connection with the heavy troop movements toward the Manchurian border by both the Nanking government and Soviet Russia.

In spite of the lull in border fighting, it was felt here that the movements of troops on a large scale presaged the possibility of a major engagement in the near future, even though war has not been formally declared by either side.

The situation along the border continued to be so tense that foreign experts here believed that it would not take many more developments to create a serious situation.

Reports continued to sift in of minor raids, with casualties on both sides, and that the Russian commander of the Pacific army was approaching from the interior of Siberia with a large force.

The Soviet commander, General Vasil Bluecher, was reported advancing toward Manchuria with a trained army of 30,000 soldiers—as pick of the Red army.

Mukden authorities, meanwhile, have ordered the mobilization of their reserves, estimated at 120,000 men, besides the movement of all their available trained forces toward the frontiers.

MANCHULI, Manchuria, Aug. 24.—Border guerilla warfare, grown common here during the last two weeks, continued in full force today, with the Soviet troops muzzled on the Manchurian-Siberian border using machine guns, armored cars and rifles to harass the Chinese patrols.

General Chang Hsueh-Liang, commander of the Chinese forces in Manchuria, reported repeated violations of Chinese territory by Red army cavalry patrols who, he said, have been crossing whenever the opportunity presented itself.

As a defensive measure, it was announced here, Chinese troops last night destroyed eighty-six railway siding stations in the vicinity of Manchuli.

PATIENTS TRAPPED IN HOSPITAL BLAZE SAVED BY FIREMEN

Heroism Marks Fire In Spokane; Loss Will Be Million

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 24.—The heroism of firemen and unknown volunteers who dared death to move bed-ridden patients of a hospital and an occupied Pullman car from the path of a roaring fire was rewarded today with the knowledge that not a single life was lost in the $1,000,000 fire which laid waste a ten-acre tract of mills, office buildings and a hospital in eastern Spokane last night.

Six firemen were injured, one seriously, as they fought to save those trapped in mills by the sudden fire which was whipped over six blocks by a forty-mile gale. A 72-year-old woman was knocked unconscious in the evacuation of tenement buildings in the path of the flames.

For five hours the flames lashed through the yards of a lumber company and the yards of the Great Northern Railroad, spreading in all directions to threaten the entire city.

The Paine Sanitarium was directly in the path of the flames. The suddenness with which the blaze swept down over the building trapped many of the patients. Firemen and volunteers appeared to carry out aged women and direct attendants in moving the patients from the hospital cots. Several patients were removed just before the flames enveloped the building. The sanitarium was completely destroyed.

Several persons were trampled in the near riot of a tenement house near the sanitarium. The building and several residences were destroyed last night.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 24.—Seven persons were arrested last night at Riverside Gardens, a dine and dance emporium on the west side, in a raid conducted by federal agents under the direction of Prohibition Administrator John E. Wright.

Warmly vibrant dance music came to an abrupt halt as the federal agents took the names of seventy-five couples, confiscated seven pints of alleged gin and whiskey found amidst chopped ice and ginger ale on the tables and arrested five waiters for violation of the national prohibition act.

Edward Sindelar, proprietor and Gus Berner, in whose car was found fourteen pints of alleged whiskey and gin, were also arrested.

YOUNGSTERS FACE ANNULMENT CASE

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Aug. 24.—James Cross, 17, and his fifteen-year-old bride, formerly Jennie Westbrook, Mineral City, today faced delinquency charges in probate court and annulment of their marriage. Charges were filed by Mrs. Beatrice Shaw, probation officer, upon their return from Wheeling, W. Va., where they obtained their marriage license last Monday. It is charged they misrepresented their ages.

KILLED BY TRAIN

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 24.—Muriel Christensen, 33, of Walbridge, O., was killed and J. D. Richardson, 28, also of Walbridge, escaped by leaping when their automobile was struck by a New York Central passenger train near Walbridge.

WOMEN RACE FLYERS SAFE BEYOND MENACE OF MOUNTAIN AREAS

Mrs. Thaden And Mrs. Omlie Leading Classes

WICHITA, Kan., Aug. 24.—Safe beyond the hazardous mountains and sand of the west, the fourteen surviving contestants in the women's California to Cleveland air derby pointed their planes toward the level plains of the central states today in their race for fortune and vindication of woman's claim to a place in the air.

This morning's program called for a takeoff for Kansas City, the day's only scheduled refueling stop. The day's flight will end at Parks Field, East St. Louis, Ill.

Their gay spirits dimmed by tragedy and misfortune and their trim planes spotted and begrimed in ery non-feminine style, the "Lady Bird" entered the final stages of their race with definite seriousness. Cash prizes of $25,000 await winners of the derby in Cleveland, Monday and with the finish in sight only a little more than one hour in total elapsed time separated the four leaders.

The four leaders in the heavy plane class were Mrs. Louise McNettrige Thaden, of Pittsburgh; Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell, Long Beach, Cal.; Ruth Nichols of New York and Amelia Earhart, New York, in order named.

Mrs. Phoebe Omlie held a lead of nearly three hours in the light plane class.

Mrs. Thaden, competing in the "housewife" class, had a lead of nearly forty minutes over Mrs. O'Donnell. Miss Nichols and Miss Earhart, of trans-Atlantic fame, were closely grouped about thirty minutes behind Mrs. O'Donnell.

For two days, Mrs. O'Donnell and Miss Nichols have sought to trim the lead of the Pittsburgh woman, but Mrs. Thaden's speedy Travelair has gained each day, adding nearly ten minutes to her lead yesterday in the flight from Fort Worth here. Miss Earhart, whose sensational burst of speed Thursday, brought her into third place, faltered yesterday and surrendered third place to Miss Nichols.

Challenging Miss Earhart for fourth position was Ruth Elder, whose flight as a passenger of a trans-Atlantic attempt furnished her a landing and rescue in the ocean and a lucrative opening in Hollywood.

Miss Elder lost an earlier advantage for the lap yesterday when she misplaced her map and was forced to land in an open field to inquire "the way to Wichita." After obtaining directions she took off gracefully from a pasture and arrived here six hours later.

The series of mishaps which rose to tragedy in the death of Miss Marvel Crosson, continued to slow progress yesterday. May Hazlip, Kansas City, was forced to land twice between Tulsa, Okla., and the municipal airfield here because of clogged oil lines. She expressed irritation at the difficulties and said she had "taken everything from her oil feeds except an airplane."

The Rasche German aviatrix, who is second in standing of the three pilots in the light plane division, said upon her arrival here that the gasoline with which her plane was serviced had been "full of dirt."

"It would seem someone put it there," Miss Rasche said. It was the only direct intimation from the women fliers that they believed themselves victims of sabotage. This destroys uniformly as to the taxation of property, for the mortgaged home owner cannot deduct the debt on his home from the assessed value of his real estate.

BANDITS GETS $2,700

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 24.—Police here today were seeking a bandit who held up Arnold Sacher, a storekeeper, and robbed him of $2,700.

JANES MUST PAY

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 24.—The domestic relations court here has ordered Charles C. Janes, 32, executive of the State Automobile Association to pay his wife $75 a month permanent alimony. Mrs. Janes who now resides in California, recently instituted the action against her husband.

SUPPORT URGED FOR TAX AMENDMENT AT JOINT FARM PICNIC

C. A. Dyer Addresses 250 On Issue At Shawnee Park

The uniform rule of taxation has never operated uniformly or justly in Ohio, and never can be made to do so, according to C. A. Dyer, legislative agent for the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, and Ohio State Grange, who spoke on the proposed tax limit amendment to the constitution, at the joint picnic of the Greene County Farm Bureau and Grange in Shawnee Park pavilion Friday afternoon.

The speaker declared that legislation after legislature has set aside the uniform rate in order that Ohio might progress in its business.

He urged support of the tax limit amendment which will be before voters in November, on the grounds that under it, it will be possible to tax different kinds of property justly. That the amendment will make it possible to do away with double taxation, which is impossible as long as the uniform rule remains in operation.

That it will make it impossible for the legislature or taxing officials to impose a tax rate greater than 15 mills on property taxed according to value unless the people of the district vote a greater rate of taxation.

That it will cause the uniform taxation of land and the improvements thereon.

That it authorizes no new form of taxation that safeguards the homes, farms and businesses of Ohio by placing a tax limit in the constitution, where there is no tax limit and no protection.

He declared that the proposed amendment does not disturb the present exemption from taxation of public buildings, of churches and of property used for educational, religious and charitable purposes.

"Ohio, the fourth state in the union in population and wealth, has been hampered for 78 years by the uniform rule of taxation," Dyer said. "The tax limit amendment being submitted this fall is an agreed draft approved by sixteen great, state-wide tax paying organizations. It is the result of their joint efforts during the past two years and is endorsed by farm, mercantile, manufacturing, financial, commercial, real estate and journalistic organizations. This fact indicates clearly that the proposed amendment is fair and impartial and should be passed by an overwhelming majority," he declared.

"The uniform rule, owing to the complexities of modern civilization, is becoming increasingly unworkable," said Dyer. "While the rule requires that credits shall be taxed, the legislature years ago passed a law that allows the deduction of debts from credits but not from any other kind of property. This destroys uniformly as to the taxation of property, for the mortgaged home owner cannot deduct the debt on his home from the assessed value of his real estate."

"The legislature," he said "has also set aside the 'uniform rule' requiring that all stocks shall be (Continued on Page Six)

YOUNG CUDAHY FINED $5,000 FOR DRIVING AUTO WHEN DRUNK

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 24.—Michael Cudahy, youthful heir to the packing house millions, today was arranging payment to the state of California of $5,000, the amount of a fine assessed by a jury that found him guilty of driving an automobile while intoxicated.

Cudahy's offense against the law, declared a misdemeanor, consisted in crumpling the fender of a car driven by Charles Lane. He was said to have been under the influence of liquor at the time.

Cudahy shook hands warmly with the jurors, eleven of whom were women, and thanked them for their services in the case. He then kissed his mother, Mrs. Jack P. Cudahy, who earlier in the day had testified in his behalf. His pretty bride, Muriel Evans, a screen actress, was almost beside herself with joy because he had escaped a possible jail sentence.

The couple immediately for Honolulu to resume the honeymoon that was interrupted by Cudahy's arrest and trial.

Tragedy Follows Pretty Actress

Elaine Worth, beautiful San Francisco actress, appears to be a dangerous lady to fall in love with for her last two sweethearts have been "put on the spot" by California's underworld within the past six months. Genero Ferri, prince of San Francisco racketeers, was riddled with bullets in the bathroom of his apartment after he and Miss Worth had been seen constantly together. After his death, Robert Chapman, her leading man, became her favorite. Now Chapman is dead and San Francisco police have a new mystery on their hands.

KELBLE CLOTHING STORE SAFE LOOTED SATURDAY

Daylight Sneak Thief Obtains Nearly $200 After Forcing Rear Screen Door; Police Quiz Suspect; Find Fingerprints

Taking advantage of the fact that attention of the proprietor and employees was diverted, a sneak thief stole about $200 from the safe in the C. A. Kelble clothing store, W. Main St., after forcing an entrance from the rear by tearing open a latched screen door, shortly before 11 a. m. Saturday.

Only slight clues have been obtained by police who began an immediate investigation. The money was in two sacks placed loosely in the safe, the door of which was closed but unlocked. It was in bills of $5 and $1 denomination, and silver.

The theft occurred while B. L. Crawford, salesman, was busy in the front of the store with a customer, and while the attention of both Mr. and Mrs. Kelble had been diverted by a fire on the opposite side of the street. Russell Stephens, another salesman, had left the store for his lunch hour.

The theft was discovered by Mr. Kelble, who noticed that the door of the safe was open, and that one of the drawers containing valuable papers was on the floor with the papers scattered about.

The rear screen door through which the thief had entered and left the store had been torn open by a hard pull which drew out a screw eye which held the latch and a wooden peg which made the latch more secure.

Police believe that the theft could not have been committed by a boy, as more strength than that of a youth was required to pull open the latched door.

Petrolman Fred Jones and Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, who investigated the theft, questioned and searched a man collecting waste paper in a push cart who was seen in the alley shortly before the theft was discovered. He was not held.

Dusty finger prints at the top of the screen door are believed to furnish another possible clue. The thief, in order to pull open the door, stood upon a stone foundation and grasped the top of the door, it is believed.

FLYER ATTEMPTS TO LOWER TIME RECORD ACROSS CONTINENT

Stops At Cincinnati To Re-Fuel After Combatting Fog

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 24.—Capt. Roscoe Turner, was left New York at 5:21 a. m. today in an attempt to break the trans-continental flight record now held by Capt. Frank Hawks, landed here at 9:45 a. m. today.

His time from Roosevelt Field, Long Island, to Lanken airport here, was two minutes less than four hours.

After refueling and making a few minor repairs on his plane, Turner hopped off for Tulsa, Okla., his next refueling stop. A plentiful supply of sandwiches was hoisted aboard just before the plane left.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Capt. Roscoe Turner flew west into a fog at 5:21:21 a. m. (EST) today in quest of the transcontinental flight record held by Capt. Frank Hawks.

Turner's destination is Los Angeles and he plans to make stops for refueling at Cincinnati, Tulsa, Okla., and Albuquerque, N. M.

Weather reports received by Turner just before he and four companions started in the Lockheed-Vega monoplane, indicated they would have to fly through fog part of the distance to Cincinnati.

Turner's companions are Fred Trooper of the Los Angeles police department; Russell Pecht, mechanic; Charles Gatty, navigator; and David Lane, a newspaperman.

MOTHER IN JAIL YOUNGSTOWN, Aug. 24.—Mrs. Norma Parker, mother of five children, was held in the county jail here today in default of a $250 fine imposed on charges of violating the liquor laws. The children ranging in age from eighteen months to thirteen years were placed in a Home.

DIRIGIBLE MAKING FAST SPEED ACROSS NORTHERN PACIFIC

Should Reach Los Angeles Monday At Speed Now

TOKIO, Aug. 24.—Flying high and fast over the steamer lane to the American northwest, the dirigible Graf Zeppelin was speeding across the Pacific Ocean today, well on her way to Los Angeles in the Japan-to-California leg of her flight around the world.

At 6 p. m. today (4 a. m. EST) the Otchichi radio station reported the Graf's position at 168:30 east, forty-three north and traveling at sixty miles per hour. The position indicated that the dirigible had traveled 1,600 miles since she left the Asu-migaura airport at 3:13 p. m. yesterday and was traveling along the Yokonoma-Seattle steamer lane.

Shortly before this report was issued the Otchichi station received a radio direct from the Graf stating that the dirigible was sailing smoothly through the fogs and cold of the North Pacific and giving its position then (8 p. m. EST Friday) as 39:30 north, 161:10 east.

The message revealed that traveling at the speed she was going the dirigible should reach Los Angeles by 6 p. m. EST Monday. She was making sixty miles an hour without difficulty.

The storms which the Graf had encountered during the earlier stages of her journey had abated, today and it was hoped that she would reach the American coast without any further trouble.

The Graf battled her way through a series of violent storms before reaching the open Pacific. Dr. Hugo Eckener, the commander of the flight, headed his giant ship due east after leaving the Japanese coast in order to escape the storms.

The Graf originally was scheduled to follow a great circle across the Pacific, but the dangerous weather caused Dr. Eckener to change his plans. Not until the Graf reached a point far out at sea did the Graf Zeppelin's navigators turn her northward, toward the circle which is followed by steamers plying between Yokohama and Seattle, Wash.

Messages from the Graf said that after several hours over the Pacific the moon finally came out to shine on the water and to witness the strange sight of a huge dirigible over the widest and greatest of oceans.

Messages from the Zeppelin said the passengers spent a most uncomfortable night. The storms tossed the ship and the lightning caused great fears that the huge bag would explode. Few on board were able to sleep throughout the night. By 10 a. m. however, the storms abated.

The passengers were fur-clad because of the cold. The three Japanese who boarded the Graf at Tokyo after a hot summer in the capital of Japan, were the greatest sufferers from the cold. They were washed in their winter underclothes and in sweaters. One of the Japanese correspondents, filing reports to his newspapers, complained that his fingers were so cold he could hardly write.

Will Try Again

Denying reports that he would race the Graf Zeppelin around the world, Dieudonne Costes, French flier ace, announced plans to hop off from Le Bourget Field, Paris, for New York, as soon as weather reports are favorable. Costes is determined to be the first to make the treacherous Paris-New York flight.

SPAGHETTI HOUSE DAMAGED BY BLAST

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 24.—Fire and an explosion early today caused heavy damage to Florence Gardens, a spaghetti house in the heart of Little Italy, and attracted an excited and gesticulating crowd of hundreds from the Mayfield district.

The property, said to be owned by Tony Moreno, suffered a loss estimated at $10,000.

The blast and fire were almost simultaneous. Investigation by firemen showed that the blaze was of incendiary origin. The whole interior had been saturated with coal oil. The explosion is believed to have resulted from gas burners which had been turned on.

WILL TRY PANTAGES ON SEPTEMBER 23

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 24.—Alexander Pantages, multi-millionaire theater man, will go to trial on Sept. 23 on charges that he attacked Eunice Pringle when the 17-year-old dancer tried to book her act on his circuit.

Date for trial was set by Superior Judge William T. Aggeler after Pantages pleaded not guilty to both counts against him.

The courtroom was crowded when the snappily dressed millionaire boomed out: "Not guilty."

YOUNGSTERS FACE ANNULMENT CASE

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Aug. 24.—James Cross, 17, and his fifteen-year-old bride, formerly Jennie Westbrook, Mineral City, today faced delinquency charges in probate court and annulment of their marriage. Charges were filed by Mrs. Beatrice Shaw, probation officer, upon their return from Wheeling, W. Va., where they obtained their marriage license last Monday. It is charged they misrepresented their ages.

KILLED BY TRAIN

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 24.—Muriel Christensen, 33, of Walbridge, O., was killed and J. D. Richardson, 28, also of Walbridge, escaped by leaping when their automobile was struck by a New York Central passenger train near Walbridge.

WOMEN RACE FLYERS SAFE BEYOND MENACE OF MOUNTAIN AREAS

Mrs. Thaden And Mrs. Omlie Leading Classes

WICHITA, Kan., Aug. 24.—Safe beyond the hazardous mountains and sand of the west, the fourteen surviving contestants in the women's California to Cleveland air derby pointed their planes toward the level plains of the central states today in their race for fortune and vindication of woman's claim to a place in the air.

This morning's program called for a takeoff for Kansas City, the day's only scheduled refueling stop. The day's flight will end at Parks Field, East St. Louis, Ill.

Their gay spirits dimmed by tragedy and misfortune and their trim planes spotted and beamed in every non-feminine style, the "Lady Bird" entered the final stages of their race with definite seriousness. Cash prizes of $25,000 await winners of the derby in Cleveland, Monday and with the finish in sight only a little more than one hour in total elapsed time separated the four leaders.

The four leaders in the heavy plane class were Mrs. Louise McPhetridge Thaden, of Pittsburgh; Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell, Long Beach, Cal.; Ruth Nichols of New York and Amelia Earhart, New York, in order named.

Mrs. Phoebe Omlie held a lead of nearly three hours in the light plane class.

Mrs. Thaden, competing in the "housewife" class, had a lead of nearly forty minutes over Mrs. O'Donnell. Miss Nichols and Miss Earhart, of trans-Atlantic fame, were close together about thirty minutes behind Mrs. O'Donnell.

For two days, Mrs. O'Donnell and Miss Nichols have sought to trim the lead of the Pittsburgh woman, but Mrs. Thaden's speedy Traveler has gained each day, adding nearly ten minutes to her lead yesterday in the flight from Fort Worth here.

Miss Earhart, whose sensational burst of speed Thursday, brought her into third place, faltered yesterday and surrendered third place to Miss Nichols.

Challenging Miss Earhart for fourth position was Ruth Elder, whose flight as a passenger on a trans-Atlantic attempt furnished her a landing and rescue in the ocean and a lucrative opening in Hollywood.

Miss Elder lost an earlier advantage for the last yesterday when she misplaced her map and was forced to land in an open field to inquire "the way to Wichita."

After obtaining directions she took off gracefully from a pasture and arrived here sixth.

The series of mishaps which rose to tragedy in the death of Miss Margaret Crossen, continued to slow progress yesterday. May Halzip, Kansas City, was forced to land twice between Tulsa, Okla., and the municipal airfield here because of clogged oil lines.

She expressed irritation at the difficulties and said she had "taken everything from her oil feeds except an elephant."

Thea Rasche, German aviatrix, who is second in standing of the three pilots in the light plane division, said upon her arrival here that her gasoline with which her plane was serviced had been "put off dirt."

"It would seem someone put it there," Miss Rasche said. It was the only direct intimation from the women fliers that they believed themselves victims of sabotage, a charge made earlier in the derby.

JANES MUST PAY

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 24.—The domestic relations court here has ordered Charles C. Janes, an executive of the State Automobile Association to pay his wife $75 a month permanent alimony. Mrs. Janes, who now resides in California, recently instituted the action against her husband.

CRUSHED TO DEATH

AKRON, O., Aug. 24.—W. A. Phillips, 40, was killed at Rossford, near here, when he was crushed between a crane and a window frame.

SUPPORT URGED FOR TAX AMENDMENT AT JOINT FARM PICNIC

C. A. Dyer Addresses
250 On Issue At Shawnee Park

The uniform rule of taxation has never operated uniformly or justly in Ohio, and never can be made to do so, according to C. A. Dyer, legislative agent for the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, and Ohio State Grange, who spoke on the proposed tax limit amendment to the constitution, at the joint picnic of the Greene County Farm Bureau and Grange in Shawnee Park pavilion Friday afternoon.

The speaker declared that legislation after legislature has set aside the uniform rule in order that Ohio might progress in its business.

He urged support of the tax limit amendment which will be before voters in November, on the grounds that under it, it will be possible to tax different kinds of property justly. That the amendment will make it possible to do away with double taxation, which is impossible as long as the uniform rule remains in operation.

That it will make it impossible for the legislature or taxing officials to impose a tax rate greater than 15 mills on property taxed according to value unless the people of the district vote a greater rate of taxation.

That it will cause the uniform taxation of land and the improvements thereon.

That it authorizes no new form of taxation that safeguards the homes, farms and businesses of Ohio by placing a tax limit in the constitution, where there is no tax limit and no protection.

He declared that the proposed amendment does not disturb the present exemption from taxation of public buildings, of churches and of property used for educational, religious and charitable purposes.

"Ohio, the fourth state in the union in population and wealth, has been hampered for 78 years by the uniform rule of taxation," Dyer said. "With the change from pioneer to modern conditions Ohio's tax law has become more and more impractical and unfair."

"This fact," he said, "has been recognized for four decades, and during that time the question of revising this section of the constitution has been submitted to the people ten times."

"Five of these times it was actually carried but was technically defeated. The tax limit amendment being submitted this fall is an agreed draft approved by sixteen great, state-wide tax paying organizations. It is the result of their joint efforts during the past two years and is endorsed by farm, mercantile, manufacturing, financial, commercial, real estate and journalistic organizations. This fact indicates clearly that the proposed amendment is fair and impartial and should be passed by an overwhelming majority," he declared.

The uniform rule, owing to the complexities of modern civilization, is becoming increasingly unworkable," said Dyer. "While the rule requires that credits shall be taxed, the legislature years ago passed a law that allows the deduction of debts from credits but not from any other kind of property. This destroys uniformity as to the taxation of property, for the mortgaged home owner cannot deduct the debt on his home from the assessed value of his real estate."

"The legislature," he said, "has also set aside the uniform rule requiring that all stocks shall be taxed."

BANDITS GETS $2,700.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 24.—Police here today were seeking a bandit who held up Arnold Sacher, a storekeeper, and robbed him of $2,700.

YOUNG CUDAHY FINED $5,000 FOR DRIVING AUTO WHEN DRUNK

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 24.—Michael Cudahy, youthful heir to the packing house millions, today was arraigned before the state of California of $5,000, the amount of a fine assessed by a jury that found him guilty of driving an automobile while intoxicated.

Cudahy's offense against the law, declared a misdemeanor, consisted in crumpling the fender of a car driven by Charles Lane. He was said to have been under the influence of liquor at the time.

Cudahy shook hands warmly with the jurors, eleven of whom were women, and thanked them for their services in the case. He then kissed his mother, Mrs. Jack P. Cudahy, who earlier in the day had testified in his behalf. His pretty bride, Muriel Evans, a screen actress, was almost beside herself with joy because he had escaped a possible jail sentence.

The couple announced they would leave immediately for Honolulu to resume the honeymoon that was interrupted by Cudahy's arrest and trial.

Tragedy Follows Pretty Actress

Elaine Worth, beautiful San Francisco actress, appears to be a dangerous lady to fall in love with for her last two sweethearts have been "put on the spot" by California's underworld within the past six months. Genero Ferri, prince of San Francisco racketeers, was riddled with bullets in the bathroom of his apartment after he and Miss Worth had been seen constantly together. After his death, Robert Chapman, her leading man, became her favorite. Now Chapman is dead and San Francisco police have a new mystery on their hands.

KELBLE CLOTHING STORE SAFE LOOTED SATURDAY

Daylight Sneak Thief Obtains Nearly $200 After Forcing Rear Screen Door; Police Quiz Suspect; Find Fingerprints

Taking advantage of the fact that attention of the proprietor and employees was diverted, a sneak thief stole about $200 from the safe in the C. A. Kelble clothing store, W. Main St., after forcing an entrance from the rear door, shortly before 11 a. m. Saturday.

Only slight clues have been obtained by police who began an immediate investigation. The money was in two sacks placed loosely in the safe, the door of which was closed but unlocked. It was in bills of $5 and $1 denomination, and silver.

The theft occurred while D. L. Crawford, salesman, was busy in the front of the store with a customer, and while the attention of both Mr. and Mrs. Kelble had been diverted by a fire on the opposite side of the street. Russell Stephens, another salesman, had left the store for his lunch hour.

The theft was discovered by Mr. Kelble, who noticed that the door of the safe was open, and that one of the drawers containing valuable papers was on the floor with the papers scattered about.

The rear screen door through which the thief had entered and left the store had been torn open by a hard pull which drew out a screw eye which held the latch and a wooden peg which made the latch more secure.

Police believe that the theft could not have been committed by a boy, as more strength than that of a youth was required to pull open the latch door.

Patrolman Fred Jones and Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, who investigated the theft, questioned and searched a man collecting waste paper in a push cart who was seen in the alley shortly before the theft was discovered. He was not held.

FLYER ATTEMPTS TO LOWER TIME RECORD ACROSS CONTINENT

Stops At Cincinnati To Re-fuel After Combating Fog

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 24.—Capt. Roscoe Turner, who left New York at 5:21 a. m. today in an attempt to break the transcontinental flight record held by Capt. Frank Hawks, landed here at 3:35 a. m. today.

His time from Roosevelt Field, Long Island, to Lunken airport here, was two minutes less than four hours.

After refueling and making a few minor repairs on his plane, Turner hopped off for Tulsa, Okla., his next refueling goal. A plentiful supply of sandwiches was hoisted aboard just before the plane left.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Capt. Roscoe Turner flew west into a fog at 5:21:21 a. m. (EST) today in quest of the transcontinental flight record held by Capt. Frank Hawks.

Turner's destination is Los Angeles and he plans to make stops for refueling at Cincinnati, Tulsa, Okla., and Albuquerque, N. M.

Weather reports received by Turner just before he and four companions started in the Lockheed-Vega monoplane indicated they would have to fly through fog part of the distance to Cincinnati.

Turner's companions are Fred Trosper of the Los Angeles police department; Russell Peight, mechanic; Charles Gatty, navigator; and David Lane, a newspaperman.

MOTHER IN JAIL

YOUNGSTOWN, Aug. 24.—Mrs. Norma Parker, mother of five children, was held in the county jail here today in default of a $250 fine imposed on charges of violating the liquor laws. The children ranging in age from eighteen months to thirteen years were placed in a Home.

DIRIGIBLE MAKING FAST SPEED ACROSS NORTHERN PACIFIC

Should Reach Los Angeles Monday At Speed Now

TOKIO, Aug. 24.—Flying high and fast over the steam-lane to the American northwest, the dirigible Graf Zeppelin was speeding across the Pacific Ocean today, well on her way to Los Angeles in the Japan-to-California leg of her flight around the world.

At 6 p. m. today (4 a. m. EST) the Otchichi radio station reported the Graf's position at 168:30 east, forty-three north and traveling at sixty miles per hour. The position indicated that the dirigible had traveled 1,600 miles since she left the Asunigaura airport at 3:13 p. m. yesterday and was traveling along the Yokonoma-Seattle steamer lane.

Shortly before this report was issued the Otchichi station received a radio direct from the Graf stating that the dirigible was sailing smoothly through the fog and cold of the North Pacific and giving its position then (8 p. m. EST Friday) as 39:29 north, 161:10 east.

The message revealed that traveling at the speed she was going the dirigible should reach Los Angeles by 6 p. m. EST Monday. She was making sixty miles an hour without difficulty.

The storms which the Graf had encountered during the earlier stages of her journey had abated, today and it was hoped that she would reach the American coast without any further trouble.

The Graf battled her way through a series of violent storms before reaching the open Pacific. Dr. Hugo Eckener, the commander of the flight, headed his giant ship due east after leaving the Japanese coast in order to escape the storms.

The Graf originally was scheduled to follow a great circle across the Pacific, but the dangerous weather caused Dr. Eckener to change his plans. Not until the Graf reached a point far out at sea did the Graf Zeppelin's navigators turn her northward, toward the circle which is followed by steamers plying between Yokohama and Seattle, Wash.

Messages from the Graf said that after several hours over the Pacific the moon finally came out to shine on the water and to witness the strange sight of a huge dirigible over the widest and greatest of oceans.

Messages from the Zeppelin said the passengers spent a most uncomfortable night. The storms tossed the ship and the lightning caused great fears that the huge bag would explode. Few on board were able to sleep throughout the night. By 10 a. m. however, the storms abated.

The passengers were fur-clad because of the cold. The three Japanese who boarded the Graf at Tokyo after a hot summer in the capital of Japan, were the greatest sufferers from the cold. They were swathed in their winter underclothes and in sweaters. One of the Japanese correspondents, filing radio reports to his newspapers, complained that his fingers were so cold he could hardly write.

Will Try Again

Denying the Graf Zeppelin would race the world, Dieudonne Costes, French flying ace, announced plans to hop off from Le Bourget Field, Paris, for New York, as soon as weather reports are favorable. Costes is determined to be the first to make the treacherous Paris-New York flight.

BLIMP SPEEDS PASSENGER ASHORE

Undaunted by Mishaps Women Fliers Speed On As Air Derby Furnishes Thrills For Nation

They Seem to Be Contented

Landing on the sea beside an incoming ocean liner, the privately-owned dirigible, Volante, set a new stunt record when it took Charles P. Bayer, a passenger, off an ocean liner at sea and flew him to Los Angeles. The blimp was fitted with pontoons and landed on the surface of the sea beside the incoming ship, while Bayer was transferred in a lifeboat. He was ashore many hours ahead of his vessel's arrival. Photo shows the transfer as viewed from the ship.

AUTOISTS UNHURT WHEN AUTO LEAVES PIKE FRIDAY NIGHT

Two men and two women escaped unhurt when their automobile skidded from the road after striking gravel, and plunged down an embankment and through a wire fence on the Dayton-Xenia Pike west of Beaver Reformed Church at 10:30 Friday night.

The automobile was undamaged, and was driven out of the field.

The car was traveling toward Dayton, driven by Miss Geraldine Snyder, Dayton, who said that she was blinded by lights of an approaching automobile, and in passing it drove too near the edge of the road. In plunging twenty-five feet down the embankment the car narrowly missed striking a culvert.

Miss Snyder was accompanied by Ray Manssler, Dayton. The other couple did not disclose their names to Peter Shagin, Xenia traffic officer, who investigated the accident. Shagin was returning from Dayton, and reached the scene shortly after the accident occurred.

Ernest Gray, Ross Twp., and Miss Velma Harner, Bath Twp., won high honors at the annual Four-H Club Camp at Antioch Glen, near Yellow Springs, this week.

Honors were distributed at a camp fire Friday night, when it was revealed that Gray had scored 2,390 points for camp activities and Miss Harner 1,875.

Caps, emblems and lucky beans were also awarded at the camp fire Friday evening. Those receiving caps were: Lois Funderburg, Leonard Bootes, Frances Finney, Julia McCaillister, Iona Eckman, Roger Rogers and Mary Linton. Emblems were given: Virginia Shaw, Janice Crites, John Turner, Mae Young, Frank Wolf and Crampton Lott, and those receiving lucky beans are first year campers. They were: Betty Tobias, Samuel Dean, Elsie Post, Robert Wolf, Richard McCallmont and Daniel Denehey.

Wilma Corry was elected president of the newly organized club called "The Tribe of a 1000" at the camp fire Friday night which is composed of members receiving "caps". Opal Turner was elected vice-president and Helen Fletcher secretary.

Members of the newly formed club are beyond the camp age. They presented the awards at the camp fire and will play a similar part in the camps of future years, and will hold regular meetings during the year.

TEXAN WINS GRAND AMERICAN HANDICAP

VANDALIA, O., Aug. 24.—The grand American handicap crown, the most coveted trophy of the American Turf Association, rested today upon the brow of Moss Newman, who hails from Sweetwater in the Texas panhandle.

Almost unheard of until yesterday when the grand American, at handicap distances of sixteen to twenty-five yards, got underway, Newman went into a five cornered for the crown, then broke twenty-five consecutive birds to win the title.

When the scheduled string of 100 targets had been shot, Newman with 93, was tied with Earl P. Booher, 17, of Dayton, O., E. F. Lockwood, Fort Wayne, Ind.; George Slaughter, Benton Harbor, Mich.; E. L. Axtell, Harvard, Ill., and W. L. Engert, Willard, O.

In the shoot-off Newman had a perfect score of 25, young Booher was second with 24, thus winning the title of runner-up.

J. H. GARLOUGH IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

J. H. Garlough, 74, died at his home in Yellow Springs at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon after a serious illness of a week. He had been in failing health since last December.

Mr. Garlough was born near Piquette, Greene County, July 8, 1855, and spent all his life in this county. He married Miss Anna M. Torrence of Springfield, August 18, 1892.

She survives with three children, J. P. Garlough of Holland, Mich.; Torrence and Willis of Yellow Springs. One brother Oliver of Yellow Springs, a sister Mrs. Geo. Rife of near Cedarville and two grandchildren also survive.

He was for twenty years secretary of the Mutual Life Insurance Co., of Springfield and a member of the Presbyterian Church of Yellow Springs.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Presbyterian Church with burial in the Clinton Cemetery.

TRACTION COMPANY SUED FOR DAMAGES

Harry B. Hasty, 2028 E. Fourth St., Dayton, has sued the Dayton and Xenia Traction Company for $5,000 damages, because of injuries received in an unusual accident last spring.

According to the petition, filed in Montgomery County common pleas court, Hasty was in a car driven by Robert Corlette. In passing another automobile on the Dayton Xenia Pike near Xenia, the Corlette machine slipped down an embankment onto the railway tracks and was hit by a traction car.

FAIRFIELD TO VOTE ON FIRE BOND ISSUE

A bond issue of $7000 for the purpose of financing erection of a new fire house and purchase of fire equipment will be submitted to voters in Fairfield at the November election. A resolution authorizing the placing of the question before the voters was passed by the village council Friday night.

COPS GET NYMPH SANS CLOTHES

Mermaid Forced To Yield By Chill Waters

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., August 24.—

It was down on the old Ohio in a camp, in the trees, out of sight where a bunch of the boys—and a crew of girls—

Were whooping it up with a might. A sprightly brunet, not "blotto" as yet. Decided to go for a swim. So she left the camp, and shook off her wraps. And dove in the stream with a vim.

A few moments later the telephone bell at police headquarters rang. It seemed a girl, sans shoes, sans stockings, sans frock—well, sans everything, was disappearing under the moon.

Three burly cops leaped into a bus and a few moments later appeared on the river bank.

As she spied the cops who commanded a boat—she snatched those nasty old things—

The brunet leaped and like a flash of light disappeared within the stream.

Then began an uneven race. When the officers, rowing lustily, came within spearing distance, the pretty brunet, minus even water-wings, dove seal fashion out of their grasp. She repeated this stunt several times and when finally she tired she hid for ten minutes beneath the boat's prow.

A brisk breeze blew up and the girl got chilled. And decided she'd had enough. So she climbed in the boat, and under a coat, And was hauled away in the bus.

Today, at police headquarters, Margaret Johnson, 20, the sprightly water nymph, was charged, not with indiscriminate swimming, but with drunkenness.

MAYOR'S COURT

TWO GIVEN FINES

Pleading guilty to illegal possession of liquor John Robinson, S. Galoway St., was fined $100 and costs by Mayor Karl R. Babb Saturday morning.

Police found a quart of whiskey in Robinson's house when they were called to the place Friday afternoon. Alva Toner, who was in the house with Robinson, was fined $25 and costs for drunk and disorderly conduct. He pleaded guilty.

CITY WILL EMPLOY PUBLIC NURSE HERE

Position of public health nurse for Xenia was created in an ordinance passed by the city commission Thursday night.

The ordinance fixes a yearly salary of $1800 for such a nurse and places the employment in the hands of the city manager.

Officials explained that it is the intention to employ a registered nurse only, and that one half of her salary will be paid by the state.

The city is now without a public health nurse, the work being entirely in the hands of Miss Emma Lyon, executive secretary of the combined charitable organizations, who is taking care of the necessary nursing. When the season advances and the work increases, she will be unable to do this, it is explained.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

PARTNERSHIP — Then saith he unto his disciples, The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few; Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest. — Matthew 9:37, 38.

FIXING FATE

Among the reasons advanced by Snook's counsel for asking for a new trial for their client was the "undue haste" shown by the jury in returning a verdict of guilty of first degree murder. The jury was out less than an hour. A quick verdict may be a crime in the eyes of long-winded lawyers; but to the man in the street it testifies to the intelligence of the jury, as well as to the thoroughness of the police in preparing the case and the clarity of the prosecutor in presenting it.

The place to try cases at law is the court room. There all the evidence is presented, all the testimony taken, all the argument by counsel heard. After the judge has charged the jury and it retires there is no opportunity to add to its knowledge of the case. The jury room is merely a place for the jury to congregate to translate its opinion into a formal verdict. Where a verdict is delayed hours and sometimes days it is usually because the case has not been clearly presented or the judge has not adequately instructed the jury or one or more of the jurors is so stupid or so truculent that he can't or won't see the merits of the case. A verdict manufactured in the jury room is less likely to be fair and in accordance with the evidence than one taken into the jury room by jurors whose minds have been made up in the court room, as the evidence for or against the defendant accumulated.

Snook's trial ran on for many days. The state's case, presented, was inherently strong and lost nothing by the manner of its presentation. A jury that took more than an hour to reach a verdict in it would have provided a stronger reason for asking a new trial than did a jury that was ready to report inside half an hour.

LIGHT IN THE "DARK CONTINENT"

Central Africa has been crossed for the first time, from the Indian ocean to the Atlantic, by automobile, in an expedition led by Paul C. Hoefler and backed by Denver citizens.

Here is another American triumph, which would interest Stanley and Livingstone.

The "Dark Continent" is no longer dark. American motor cars will soon be letting the light in from all sides. There will be traffic jams eventually in the Kongo country, and one the "great, gray-green Limpopo, river" all girt about with fever trees.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK — The Better Element in New York is wailing and gnashing its teeth over a proposed memorial tablet in the heart of Union Square Park, to Charles Francis Murphy, one time leader of Tammany Hall.

Union Square Park already has three memorials — to Washington, Lincoln and Lafayette. Washington has the society of a subway kiosk. Lafayette looks down on a welter of trams and motor cars. Honest Abe gets a better break than his two distinguished companions; but Charles Francis Murphy will outclass them all, so far as position goes. His memorial will be dead-center in the park, at the base of the Liberty flagpole.

Why not? Given the start that Charles Francis had, do you suppose Washington, Lincoln or Lafayette would have risen to the superb heights Brother Murphy attained? He started on the Bowery and ended in Delmonico's. He began as a bartender dominating a hole-in-the-wall with a bung-starter; and he ended by taking a stranglehold on the great and glorious city of New York.

When you hear of Charles Francis Murphy bear in mind his noblest utterance. It was on an historic occasion. He was covering the governor of the Empire State who had threatened "to appeal to the people."

"The pee-pul!" sneered Murphy. "My dear governor, the pee-pul don't forget. That's how I keep my job!"

GRAFT TOTALS

A dry candidate for the Republican majority nomination charged that Tammany Town's 22,000 apocrasies pay annual $32 million, dollars graft.

The Worthy Brother is slightly off the trail. A Hooch Hut in New York that cannot kick in, at least $100 a week, isn't permitted to go on living. New York's big-time town and the scenery mustn't be cluttered with any two-octave hide-aways.

Sharpen up the old Eberhard and figure it out for yourself. Thirty-two thousand Manhattan Mulesters, each contributing at least

EXPRESSION IN WORK

Years ago furniture and most of the things people used were hand made. Today almost everything is machine made. Making things by hand, workmen put something of themselves into the task and into the product. Personality found expression in the task and in the product. It made itself felt in the chair and in the table. That is why discriminating people like antique furniture. They find in it a beauty and a "personality" that can never find its way into machine-made products.

THE GUILTY CONSCIENCE

Those who do not analyze life very carefully are likely to think a guilty conscience betrays itself. They believe that persons guilty of a wrong act are sure to show their guilt in their behavior. The trouble with this theory is that it does not check up with the facts. Guilty persons are usually prepared for discovery. They conceal their real feelings. Those not guilty, suddenly accused of wrong doing, are confused, irritated, perhaps hurt.

COMFORT

The boy chosen by Edison for a technical education and to be given every chance to succeed the master inventor in his work, said one thing in answer to an examination which must have pleased the wizard. The boy said he would sacrifice his comfort for success. He didn't say he would sacrifice love or honor or any of life's greatest possessions, but he said he would sacrifice comfort.

That is just where so many boys fail. They are willing to work hard, if they like the work. They are willing even to sacrifice some things they should not sacrifice. But they are not willing to give up comfort.

AGE AND EXPERIENCE

Iceland will soon celebrate the one-thousandth anniversary of the founding of its parliament or congress. It is one of the oldest law-making bodies in the world. It was set up in the year 930. Iceland was a country of government and order hundreds of years before there was any United States. In Iceland the people are law abiding. Life is simpler and probably happier than in countries which have gone farther in a machine-age civilization.

Perhaps when the United States is as old as Iceland we shall do some things better—have less crime, more order, less unhappiness. Let us be patient for at least a thousand years.

PEACE FAVORED TO PRESERVE NATIONAL PRECEDENT

By ELMER THOMAS
Senator from Oklahoma
(Elmer Thomas was born at Greencastle, Ind., Sept. 8, 1876. He is a graduate of Central Normal college and Depauw university. He was admitted to the bar in 1897. From 1901 to 1911 he practiced at Lawton, Okla. He is the owner and operator of Medicine Park, Okla. Elected to the Oklahoma senate in 1907, he served until 1920 when he resigned. In 1910 he was chairman of the Democratic state convention. He was elected to congress in 1923 from the sixth Oklahoma district and served until 1927. In that year he was elected to the senate.)

It is claimed by some that only through war can other nations or human progress be made. I do not subscribe to such a doctrine. This may have been true in former ages, but assuredly not so today. No nation and no people can profit permanently from war. America has grown great and rich and powerful, not through war, but in spite of war.

In recent times, through the annihilation of space and distance, the world has grown so small that war anywhere disturbs peoples everywhere. It is not enough that America be at peace. To be safe we must not only be at peace ourselves, but we must exert every influence to keep other peoples at peace.

In this program our duty is plain. We must remember that the other nations are our neighbors. We cannot live to ourselves alone. For America to enjoy peace, other nations must enjoy peace.

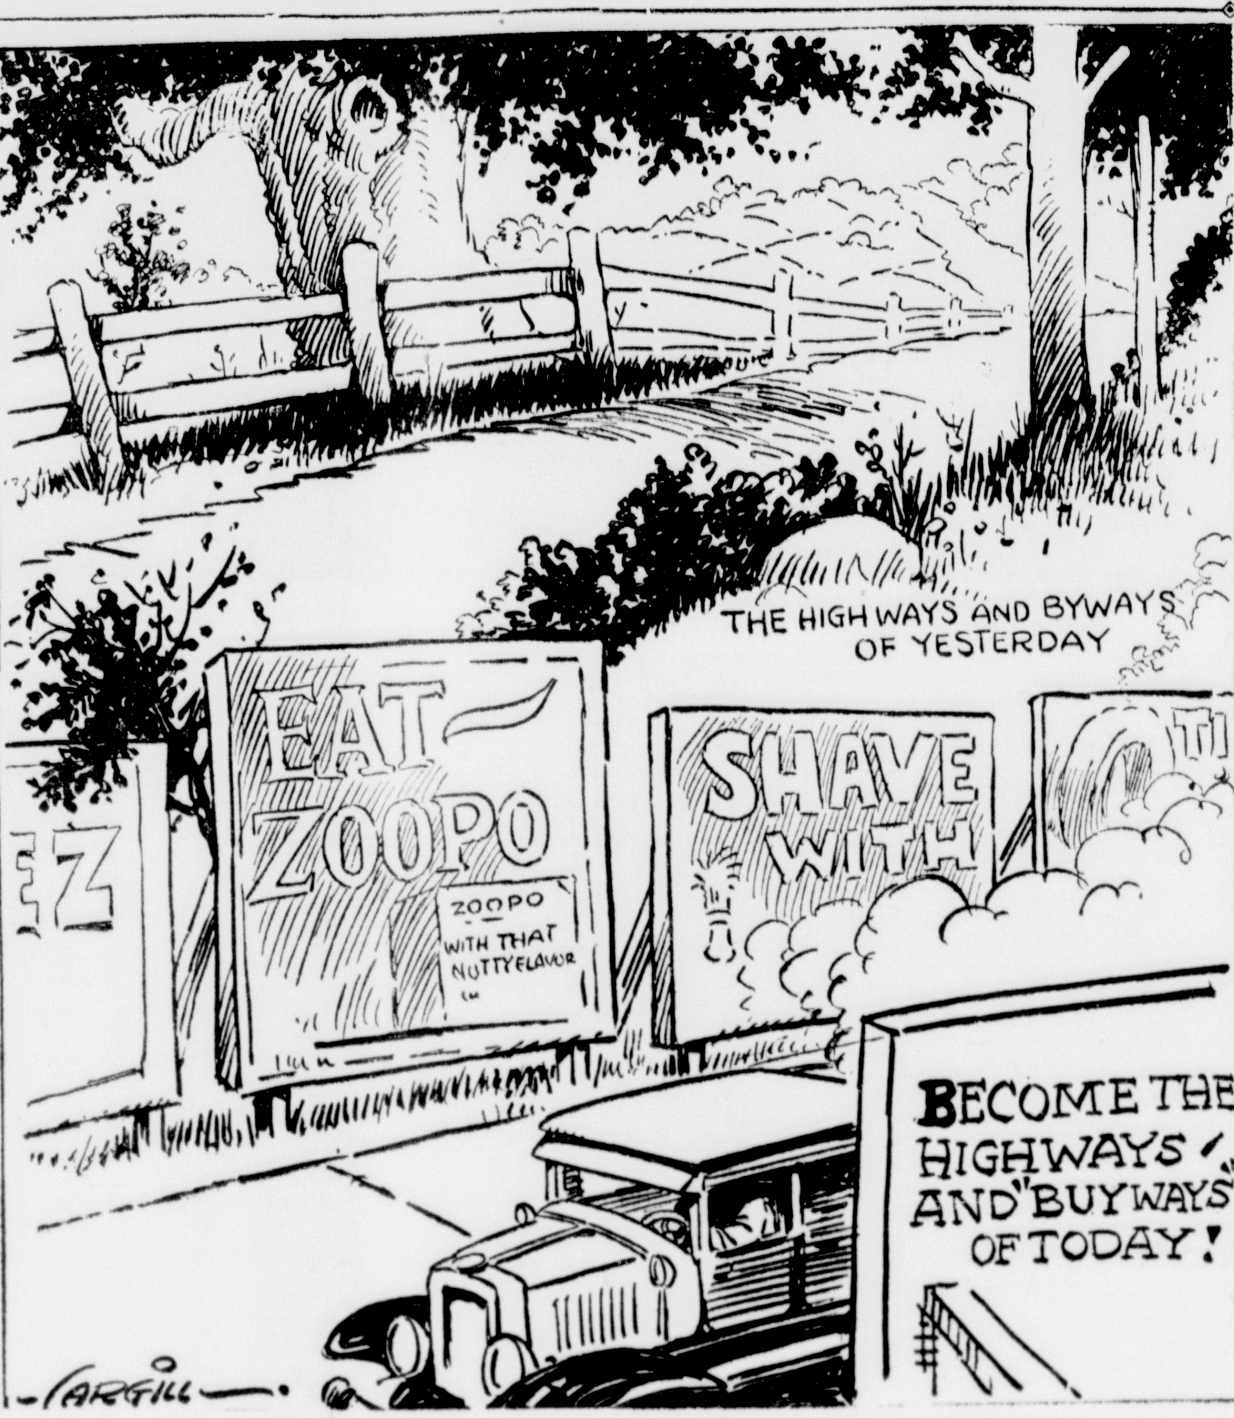

In former times peoples and governments prepared for war and welcomed armed contests. It may seem to some that this spirit of destruction and conquest still stalks the land. If such there be, I hope their fears, or perhaps desire, go unfulfilled and unfilled.

I think I see a brighter day. As evidence consider that the League of Nations is now functioning and the World Court is now sitting at Geneva, and the covenants of the Kellogg Peace Pact are now the universal law of mankind.

As another step in this development, as another chapter in the program of peace, and with approval and thanksgiving, I commend the recent MacDonald-Hoover understanding for the immediate reduction of naval armaments.

While we have and do condemn war, while we have pledged our government and our people not to resort to war except in our own defense, yet national and individual security demand that we ever

THE MARCH OF CIVILIZATION

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

In my last article, I told you of three fundamental principles underlying the scientific care of the skin. Those three simple steps will keep the young skin healthy and beautiful. However, many women neglect their skins when they are girls, and so in their thirties, forties and fifties, when their beauty should be at its best, they find that their skins no longer look fresh and lovely—their contour no longer has that clear-cut look of youth.

But don't be discouraged! If you are willing to give a little time and thought—and the correct, scientific treatment—your skin can be restored to health and beauty. As we grow older, our circulation slows down. We no longer lead the active lives of childhood—no longer romp and play. And so the blood flows less and less swiftly through our veins! And that is the cause of most of our skin trouble! Exercise—active exercise—will help a lot.

If you can play golf or tennis, ride horseback, swim—by all means do so. A good, brisk walk is also very beneficial. Every woman owes it to herself, her friends and family, to take some form of brisk exercise every day. There's nothing like it for health and beauty. But if you've once allowed your circulation to slow down, become even the tiniest bit sluggish, you will need even more than daily exercise to bring it back and restore it to beauty. You need specific stimulation of the skin—and that, fortunately, you can get by means of a liquid stimulant applied directly to the skin and which acts in the form of local exercise—a stimulant that makes all the little cells of your skin work.

And you should pat briskly—a real slapping under the chin with the back of your hand—a lighter but still brisk patting with the finger tips all along the expression lines—ALWAYS UPWARD AND OUTWARD! This patting will help your stimulant bring the blood to the surface, and the blood, you know, brings food to the skin and carries away impurities.

For those sagging muscles, pat in a good muscle tightener every night before you go to bed. Apply under the chin and over the cheeks, following the expression lines and always patting upward and outward. Then gently pat in around the eyes. And that is the cause of most of our skin trouble! Exercise—active exercise—will help a lot.

"To reclaim these people," pointed out the senator, "is something of a problem."

"To what type of experts have we committed the problem?" "The senate committee questioned a good many of them on its tour of investigation."

"What would you suggest?" we asked one superintendent. "No more investigations," was the answer.

"And you?" we queried another. "Something," came the reply, "to make the Indians appreciate what we have done for them."

"If they did appreciate it and failed to take the warpath, the 'noble red man' already is an extinct species. The old Indian who died fighting was the lucky one."

Another pudding recipe to cut out and file. You can serve it to the children. It won't hurt them a bit. It can also be made early in the day and be all ready to serve for dinner at night. Why not make enough so that it will serve for luncheon dessert the next day?

Today's Recipes
Baked Ham—Slice ham one inch thick, prepared mustard, two-thirds cup condensed milk, one cup hot water. Pan broil ham, spread with mustard to cover well. Mix milk with hot water and pour over ham in baking pan. Bake in moderate oven for 15 minutes, remove cover and cook till tender and liquid is absorbed, about 30 minutes.

Spinach—One and one-half cups cooked spinach, one cup bread crumbs, one cup grated cheese, one egg well beaten, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon lemon juice. Chop spinach fine, add crumbs, cheese, egg, salt and lemon juice. Pour into a buttered pan and bake in moderate oven about 25 minutes. Unmold and place on platter and pour over all two cups hot tomato sauce.

Date Butterscotch—Two tablespoons minute tapioca, one-half pint hot water, one and one-half tablespoons butter, pinch salt, three tablespoons brown sugar, vanilla, three-quarters cup chopped dates. Cook tapioca and salt in hot water in double boiler 15 minutes, stirring frequently. Melt butter in sauce pan, add sugar and stir till melted. Stir into tapioca mixture. Add vanilla and chopped dates. Pour into buttered baking dish. Bake 30 minutes in moderate oven. Serve hot with cream or top milk.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Thanks, Doctor. "Dear Dr. Peters: This is the second time I am writing you. The first time, it was for your Dietizing pamphlet, and this time it is to tell you I cannot express my gratitude. I am 53 years old, 5 ft. 11 in. tall, and seven months ago I weighed 167 pounds. By following your instructions I now weigh 126½. I weighed myself each Saturday morning on regular market scales, and I didn't cheat. I did not go on the three-day shrinking stomach period; the regular reducing diet did the work. My friends tell me I look as I used to long ago. No more double chin. All my clothes are too large; my corsets are falling off me and even my shoes are too big! I could not run before, but I can now. I used to have cramps in the backs of my legs if I knelt for any length of time, but I can do it easily now. I also had a hard whitish lump on my eyelid but it disappeared during my reducing. I think it is a good thing I lost a pound, means the world to me, because it worried me.

"I am very happy and grateful to you, Dr. Peters. I think God has sent you to help the helpless. May God bless you. MRS. W."

Thank you, Mrs. W., for your very kind wishes. That little lump on your eyelid must have been a little fatty deposit, to have disappeared with the rest of your fat. There is a peculiar yellowish nodular formation which may appear on the eyelids, especially in the elderly obese, known as xanthoma. I am glad to know it will disappear on reducing the weight. I think it is advisable to keep taking your clothes in as you reduce; they look so much better and do not make you look so large. (Too tight clothes make you look larger also.) Thus it keeps up your morale. It is interesting to know that even the feet get smaller. Naturally there is some fat lost from there, too. It really is not necessary to get on the three-day shrinking stomach period. But it certainly gives you a wonderful start.

Those who are in need of instructions Mr. W. followed may have our pamphlet on the subject by following column rules. (It also tells you how to gain.) "I am a man of 59 and weigh 145 pounds, 5 ft. 7 in. tall. Have an itchy, creepy feeling on a spot about the size of one's hand on the right shoulder blade. It feels as if a swarm of ants were crawling there. Comes on at different times and is very annoying. Skin shows no eruptions or marks. What can I do for this?" "MR. M."

I suggest you have an examination by a lung specialist, Mr. M. It occasionally happens that a constantly itching spot such as you have is due to some trouble in the chest, causing a nerve irritation. Firm pressure will relieve the itching more than scratching, perhaps.

Mrs. D.—You are suffering from what is known as a phobia—a fear without any foundation. Perhaps your weakened nervous system is the cause. You should see a physician who specializes in nervous disorders. Do not worry about this; many people go through these phobias at some time in their lives, and fully recover. Don't give in to it. And try to change the trend of your thoughts when you have this fear.

You should have a balanced diet and a liberal amount of sleep and rest and be in the open air as much as possible. We have an article on Balanced Diet which you may have.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

I was sitting on the porch the other night looking at the moon. Do you ever do that? Just watch the sky? I don't have time very often, either, but I like to. I think the moon was in its second quarter. It was not very big, anyhow, but it shone bravely. Then some clouds came up. At first only a thin veil covered the moon, then it was completely blotted out.

But I knew that behind that dark cloud it was still shining serenely. I couldn't see it, that was all.

I like to moralize about such things, don't you, when you are just in the mood? I thought how like the moon's shining was to a deep abiding love—like one's mother's or father's, or maybe husband's or wives', lover's or sweetheart's—or friend's.

When dark clouds of sorrow come and blot out the light we can depend on it shining away behind the clouds, and sometimes the light shows at the edges, or through the clouds and shows them not so dark after all. Pretty time to have—love like that, isn't it? Do we always appreciate it enough?

PASSIONATE 14: My dear little girl, you did just right and I'm so proud of you. No, no, don't give in. Will you send me your real name and address written on a stamped envelope and ten cents (coin) and I'll send you a pamphlet that will help.

If you could talk to your mother it would be better. If you could tell her that you wrote me and that I am sending you the pamphlet and will send her read it and explain anything you don't understand, it would be fine. Of course I couldn't say for sure, but I think that the love you have for this boy will pass, and you will see that he is not really worth the time love you could give.

Dear VIRGINIA LEE: I am an ardent reader of your column and I have come to you for aid. I am a girl 16 and in love with a fellow 24. I am sure this is not a case of "puppy love." He knows me well and also knows my parents, and I know they would approve of my going with him. He seems to consider me as still a kid. I am not pretty, but am tall, well built and dress nicely. I am popular with school boys, but can't seem to attract him. And he's the one I want. "BLUEY"

The trouble is, you'll know the answer when you're 24 and you think of the little girl of 16 that you were. And it doesn't do much good now, does it? All you can do is to try to be as much of a companion to him as you can when you have a chance. You can imagine how he feels toward you when you think how you feel toward a boy eight years younger—or even four years younger. He's a man, you're a little girl—and I have no doubt he thinks of you as a very sweet kid.

DOLLY AND DIMPLES: There is no way for you to win the boy's friends except by being awfully nice and interested in them and their affairs when you are with them. Boys usually don't care for the girl who runs after them, and prefer to do the courting themselves.

SENORITA: I won't have time to answer your letter personally for some time, and you did not send a stamped, addressed envelope, so I wonder if I may put the answer to your question here? No one will know who wrote it. I am sure it might make a lot of difference, but not if two people loved one another enough.

JUST PALS: It seems as if I answer your questions every day, girls, so all you have to do is to read the column. You can't win a boy who doesn't want to be won. You can be friendly and sweet to him, but if you don't attract him so that he will call or take you out, or at least "take you home from rathskellers, you can't "win" him. And if boys are attracted to girls there is never any doubt about it. They seek their company.

It's all right to go riding with a boy if your parents approve, a little "petting" is not a criminal offense, any more than a goodnight kiss, but usually a little petting means more, and that always seems cheapening and meaningless to me.

Peter's Adventures

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

ASLEEP IN ROSE-LEAF CRIBS
It was high time for Dawdler to make himself known and he introduced himself and the boy with a grand flourish.

"I am Dawdler, the Honey Bee family, with Peter, the boy friend of the Bees. We have just moved into one of the villas in Bee Village hard by, and are interested in hunting up those of our kinkfolk who reside here. We are fortunate in meeting you so soon."

"Permit me to consider myself the fortunate one, and may I beg of you to step this way into my home!" said Mr. Uplifter.

Peter gripped Dawdler's claw a bit tighter as they followed their new friend into a hole in the ground just beneath the outstretched root of the tree. Once inside Peter caught his breath with delight.

They had come into the levelled hall, all lined, walls and ceiling, with deep pink rose petals. Before he thought about its not being quite polite he had gone close to the wall to feel it. Soft as silk it was.

"Yes," their host was saying, smiling at Peter's open admiration, "we had our place done in rose

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

PARTNERSHIP—Then saith he unto his disciples, The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few; Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest. — Matthew 9:37, 38.

FIXING FATE

Among the reasons advanced by Snook's counsel for asking for a new trial for their client was the "undue haste" shown by the jury in returning a verdict of guilty of first degree murder. The jury was out less than an hour. A quick verdict may be a crime in the eyes of long-winded lawyers; but to the man in the street it testifies to the intelligence of the jury, as well as to the thoroughness of the police in preparing the case and the clarity of the prosecutor in presenting it.

The place to try cases at law is the court room. There all the evidence is presented, all the testimony taken, all the argument by counsel heard. After the judge has charged the jury and it retires there is no opportunity to add to its knowledge of the case. The jury room is merely a place for the jury to congregate to translate its opinion into a formal verdict. Where a verdict is delayed hours and sometimes days it is usually because the case has not been clearly presented or the judge has not adequately instructed the jury or one or more of the jurors is so stupid or so truculent that he can't or won't see the merits of the case. A verdict manufactured in the jury room is less likely to be fair and in accordance with the evidence than one taken into the jury room by jurors whose minds have been made up in the court room, as the evidence for or against the defendant accumulated.

Snook's trial ran on for many days. The state's case, presented, was inherently strong and lost nothing by the manner of its presentation. A jury that took more than an hour to reach a verdict in it would have provided a stronger reason for asking a new trial than did a jury that was ready to report inside half an hour.

LIGHT IN THE "DARK CONTINENT"

Central Africa has been crossed for the first time, from the Indian ocean to the Atlantic, by automobile, in an expedition led by Paul C. Hoefler and backed by Denver citizens.

Here is another American triumph, which would interest Stanley and Livingstone.

The "Dark Continent" is no longer dark. American motor cars will soon be letting the light in from all sides. There will be traffic jams eventually in the Kongo country, and one the "great, gray-green Limpopo, river all girt about with fever trees."

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK — The Better Element in New York is wailing and gnashing its teeth over a proposed memorial tablet in the heart of Union Square Park, to Charles Francis Murphy, one-time leader of Tammany Hall.

Union Square Park already has three memorials — to Washington, Lincoln and Lafayette. Washington has the society of a subway kiosk. Lafayette looks down on a welter of trams and motor cars. Honest Abe gets a better break than his two distinguished companions; but Charles Francis Murphy will outclass them all, so far as position goes. His memorial will be dead-center in the park, at the base of the Liberty flagpole.

Why not? Given the start that Charles Francis had, do you suppose Washington, Lincoln or Lafayette would have risen to the superb heights Brother Murphy attained? He started on the Bowery and ended in Delmonico's. He began as a bartender dominating a hole-in-the-wall with a bung-starter, and he ended by taking a stranglehold on the great and glorious city of New York.

When you hear of Charles Francis Murphy bear in mind his noblest utterance. It was on an historic occasion. He was coercing the governor of the Empire State who had threatened "to appeal to the pse-pul."

"The pre-pul!" sneered Murphy. "My dear governor, the pre-pul soon forget. That's how I keep my job!"

GRAFT TOTALS

A dry candidate for the Republican majority nomination charged that Tammany Town's 32,000 speakers pay annual $2 million, dollars graft.

The Worthy Brother is slightly off the trail. A Hooch Hut in New York that cannot kick in, at least $100 a week, isn't permitted to go on living. New York's a big-time town and the scenery mustn't be cluttered with any two-octave hide-aways.

Sharpen up the old Eberhard and figure it out for yourself. Thirty-two thousand Manhattan Mule-steers, each contributing at least $100 a week, brings the cost of the Noble Experiment (in graft) somewhere around 165 million dollars per annum.

HOW DOES SHE EXIST?

She's a sales girl in a five and ten center. She gets $11 a week, pays five of it for a room, eats at the automat and makes $3 cover her costume and meals for a week. She buys a reptile shoe for $17.95. Her stockings cost 14 cents apiece and she makes them last a couple of months by washing them every night.

"I'm sick of this way of living," she told an interviewer, "an' you can take it from me, I'm gettin' out of it pretty soon."

FOR THE SAKE OF BRAGGING

One of the chief advantages of residing in New York is being able to brag that you live there.

I know an Unprominent Citizen and his wife who quit a nice little white frame cottage Back Hum to live in the Capital of the Commonwealth.

They pay $150 a month for a "stew-dyn" and kitchenette on the top floor of a "converted" private dwelling in the Sublimated Seventies. They never see more than a patch of the sky and are so hemmed in by life that they're beginning to trip over each other's temperaments and snarl about it. She loves to cook and her kitchen equipment consists of a can opener, a one-hole gas burner, a Japanese screen and a diminutive wash bowl where, in years long gone, the fured girl used to have her dainty finger-tips before departing for the bathroom to start the fire and jerk the inatutinal waffle iron.

WHAT DO THEY MEAN?

There are three tabloids in New York. The editor of one accused the other two of pirating his ideas.

Whereupon a Gentleman of the Old School arose to inquire: "What do those two birds mean by robbing a street-cleaner's shovel?"

ILLUSTRIOUS LINES

"I'm strongly suspicious that many of those who pick up New York wouldn't mind living there," — Mayor Walker.

EXPRESSION IN WORK

Years ago furniture and most of the things people used were hand made. Today almost everything is machine made. Making things by hand, workmen put something of themselves into the task and into the product. Personality found expression. It made itself felt in the chair and in the table. That is why discriminating people like antique furniture. They find in it a beauty and a "personality" that can never find its way into machine-made products.

THE GUILTY CONSCIENCE

Those who do not analyze life very carefully are likely to think a guilty conscience betrays itself. They believe that persons guilty of a wrong act are sure to show their guilt in their behavior. The trouble with this theory is that it does not check up with the facts. Guilty persons are usually prepared for discovery. They conceal their real feelings. Those not guilty, suddenly accused of wrong doing, are confused, irritated, perhaps hurt.

COMFORT

The boy chosen by Edison for a technical education and to be given every chance to succeed the master inventor in his work, said one thing in answer to an examination which must have pleased the wizard. The boy said he would sacrifice his comfort for success. He didn't say he would sacrifice love or honor or any of life's greatest possessions, but he said he would sacrifice comfort.

That is just where so many boys fail. They are willing to work hard, if they like the work. They are willing even to sacrifice some things they should not sacrifice. But they are not willing to give up comfort.

AGE AND EXPERIENCE

Iceland will soon celebrate the one-thousandth anniversary of the founding of its parliament or congress. It is one of the oldest law-making bodies in the world. It was set up in the year 930. Iceland is a country of government and order. Hundreds of years before there was any United States. In Iceland the people are law abiding. Life is simpler and probably happier than in countries which have gone farther in a machine-age civilization.

Perhaps when the United States is as old as Iceland we shall do some things better—have less crime, more order, less unhappiness. Let us be patient for at least a thousand years.

FAVORED TO PRESERVE NATIONAL PROSPERITY

By ELMER THOMAS
Senator From Oklahoma

(Elmer Thomas was born at Greentown, Ind., Sept. 8, 1876. He is a graduate of Central Normal college and DePaul university. He was admitted to the bar in 1897. From 1901 to 1911 he practiced at Lawton, Okla. He is the owner and operator of Medicine Park, Okla. Elected to the Oklahoma senate in 1907, he served until 1920 when he resigned. In 1910 he was chairman of the Democratic state convention. He was elected to congress in 1923 from the sixth Oklahoma district and served until 1927. In that year he was elected to the senate.)

It is claimed by some that only through war can either national or human progress be made. I do not subscribe to such a doctrine. This may have been true in former ages, but assuredly not so today. No nation and no people can profit permanently from war. America has grown great and rich and powerful, not through war, but in spite of war.

In recent times, through the annihilation of space and distance, the world has grown so small that war anywhere disturbs peoples everywhere. It is not enough that America be at peace. To be safe we must not only be at peace ourselves, but we must exert every influence to keep other peoples at peace.

In this program our duty is plain. We must remember that the other nations are our neighbors. We cannot live to ourselves alone. For America to enjoy peace, other nations must enjoy peace.

In former times peoples and governments prepared for war and welcomed armed conflicts. It may seem to some that this spirit of destruction and conquest still stalks the land. If such there be, I hope their fears, or perhaps desires, go unfounded and unfulfilled.

I think I see a brighter day. As evidence consider that the League of Nations is now functioning and the World Court, is now sitting at Geneva, and the covenants of the Kellogg Peace Pact are now the universal law of mankind.

As another step in this development; as another chapter in the program of peace, and with approval and thanksgiving, I commend the recent MacDonald-Hoover understanding for the immediate reduction of naval armaments.

While we have and do condemn war, while we have pledged our governments and our people not to resort to war except in our own defense, yet national and individual security demand that we ever

THE MARCH OF CIVILIZATION

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

In my last article, I told you of three fundamental principles underlying the scientific care of the skin. Those three simple steps will keep the young skin healthy and beautiful. However, many women neglect their skins when they are girls, and so in their thirties, forties and fifties, when their beauty should be at its best, they find that their skins no longer look fresh and lovely—their contour no longer has that clear-cut look of youth.

But don't be discouraged! If you are willing to give a little time and thought—and the correct, scientific treatment—your skin can be restored to health and beauty.

As we grow older, our circulation slows down. We no longer lead the active lives of childhood—no longer romp and play. And so the blood flows less and less swiftly through our veins! And that is the cause of most of our skin trouble! Exercise—active exercise—will help a lot.

If you can play golf or tennis, ride horseback, swim—by all means do so. A good, brisk walk is also very beneficial. Every woman owes it to herself, her friends and family, to take some form of brisk exercise for health and beauty. But if you've once allowed your circulation to slow down, become even the tiniest bit sluggish, you will need even more than daily exercise to bring it back and restore it to beauty. You need specific stimulation of the skin—and that, fortunately, you can get by means of a liquid stimulant applied directly to the skin and which acts in the form of local exercise—a stimulant that makes all the cells of your skin work.

And you should pat briskly—a real slapping under the chin with the back of your hand—a lighter but still brisk patting with the finger tips all along the expression lines—ALWAYS UPWARD AND OUTWARD! This patting will help your stimulant bring the blood to the surface, and the blood, you know, brings food to the skin and carries away impurities.

For those sagging muscles, pat in a good muscle tightener every night before you go to bed. Apply under the chin and over the cheeks, following the expression lines and always patting upward and outward. Then gently pat in around the eyes, beginning at the outer corner and coming inward to the nose with just the gentlest pat imaginable—so light and gentle you might almost say it was a mere finger print. Allow your contour jelly or muscle tightener to remain on fifteen or twenty minutes before going ahead with your treatment. Do not remove, but apply a rich, nourishing cream upward, and paying particular attention to the eyes. After the cream has been on fifteen or twenty minutes, remove it—except under the eyes. Allow that to remain on overnight.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—The Indians have no appreciation of all that has been done for them!

"Probably not," agrees Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana.

"If they had, I am pretty sure they would stage one grand farewell massacre of as many whites as possible before their final extermination."

With other members of the senate committee on Indian affairs, the Montana senator recently returned from an inspection of the American aborigines' northwestern reservations.

"A rapidly dying race" at its present rate, "is his verdict."

The senator already has broadcast an official report of his observations. There is no use in repeating it. However, he does supplement it with a few words of pungent comment which are interesting.

"True, the Indian office has undergone a thorough overhauling as an initial step in Secretary of the Interior Wilbur's administration," continued the Montana lawmaker, "and we are entitled to hope for better conditions under the new regime than during the 30 or 40 years of its predecessor's mismanagement."

"But will the improvement last indefinitely?—as it must, to save the Indians from extinction."

"Twenty-five per cent of the tuberculosis victims! Trachoma epidemic! Social disease rampant! A still behind every sage bush! These tendencies are not to be reversed in a hurry. A generation of reconstruction is essential."

tific agronomist can raise a living—in the midst of an intensive, modern, industrial civilization."

"The senate committee questioned a good many of them on its tour of investigation."

"What would you suggest?" we asked one superintendent.

"No more investigations," was the answer.

You should see a physician who specializes in nervous disorders. Do not worry about this, many people go through these phobias at some time in their lives, and fully recover. Don't give in to it. And try to change the trend of your thoughts when you have this fear.

You should have a balanced diet and a liberal amount of sleep and rest and be in the open air as much as possible.

We have an article on Balance Diet which you may have.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

I was sitting on the porch the other night looking at the moon. Do you ever do that? Just watch the sky? I don't have time very often, either, but I like to.

I think the moon was in its second quarter. It was not very big, anyhow, but it shone bravely. Some clouds came up. At first only a thin veil covered the moon, then it was completely blotted out.

But I knew that behind that dark cloud it was still shining serenely. I couldn't see it, that was all.

I like to moralize about such things, don't you, when you are just in the mood? I thought how like the moon's shining was to a deep abiding love—like one's mother's or father's, or maybe husband's or wife's love, or sweetheart's—or friend's.

When dark clouds of sorrow come and blot out the light we can depend on it shining away behind the clouds, and sometimes the light shows at the edges or through the clouds and shows them not so dark after all.

Pretty time to have—love like that, isn't it? Do we always appreciate it enough?

PASSIONATE 14: My dear little girl, you did just right and I'm so proud of you. No, no, don't give in. Will you send me your real name and address written on a stamped envelope and ten cents (coin) and I'll send you a pamphlet that will help.

If you could talk to your mother it would be better. If you could tell her that you wrote me and that I am sending you the pamphlet and will she read it and explain anything you don't understand, it would be fine. Of course I couldn't say for sure, but I think that the love you have for this boy will pass, and you will see that he is not really worth the fine love you could give.

"Dear VIRGINIA LEE: I am an ardent reader of your column and have come to you for aid. I am a girl 16 and in love with a fellow 24. I am sure this is not a case of 'puppy love.' He knows me well and also knows my parents, and I know they would approve of my going with him. He seems to consider me as still a kid. I am not pretty, but am tall, well built and dress neat. I am popular with schoolboys, but can't seem to attract him, and he's the one I want. BLUEY."

The trouble is, you'll know too much of the little girl of 16 that you were. And it doesn't do much good now, does it? All you can do is to try to be as much of a companion to him as you can when you have a chance. You can imagine how he feels toward you when you think how you feel toward a boy eight years younger—or even four years younger. He's a man, you're a little girl—and I have no doubt he thinks of you as a very sweet kid.

DOLLY AND DIMPLES: There is no way for you to win the boy friends except by being awfully nice and interested in them and their affairs when you are with them. Boys usually don't care for the girls who run after them, and prefer to do the courting themselves.

SENORITA: I won't have time to answer your letter personally for some time, and you did not send a stamped, addressed envelope, so I wonder if I may put the answer to your question here? No one will know who wrote it. I am sure it might make a lot of difference, but not if two people loved one another enough.

JUST FALS: It seems as if I answer your questions every day, girls, so all you have to do is to read the column. You can't win a boy who doesn't want to be won. You can be friendly and sweet to him, but if you don't attract him so that he will ask to call or take you out, or at least take you home from gatherings, you can't "win" him. And if boys are attracted to girls there is never any doubt about it. They seek their company.

It's all right to go riding with a boy if your parents approve, a little "petting" is not a criminal offense, any more than a goodnight kiss, but usually a little petting means more, and that always seems cheapening and meaningless to me.

Velvet is used for the crushable type of hat this fall, usually developed into baby cap themes with length in the back.

Peter's Adventures

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

ASLEEP IN ROSE-LEAF CRIBS

It was high time for Dawdler to make himself known and he introduced himself and the boy with a grand flourish.

"I am Dawdler, of the Honey Bee family, with Peter, the boy friend of the Bees. We have just moved into one of the villas in Bee Village hard by, and are interested in hunting up those of our kindfolk who reside here. We are fortunate in meeting you so soon."

"Permit me to consider myself the fortunate one, and may I beg of you to step this way into my home?" said Mr. Updewster.

Peter gripped Dawdler's claw a bit tighter as they followed their new friend into a hole in the ground just beneath the outstretched root of the tree. Once inside Peter caught his breath with delight.

"They had come into the loveliest hall, all lined, walls and ceiling, with deep pink rose petals. Before he thought about its not being quite polite he had gone close to the wall to feel it. Soft as silk it was."

"Yes," their host was saying, smiling at Peter's open admiration, "we had our place done in rose

this year. Last year we had poppy petals. As you see, I had just gone out for a fresh bit of petal to mend that weak place in the wall where yesterday's rain soaked

The suggestion may come from some quarters that a football with a seam on the outside would prove popular in high school football, as a preventive measure for fumbles. The idea might appeal to Coach "Pinky" Wilson, of Central High School, as it might prevent the wear and tear on his nerves caused when one of the blue and white athletes fumbles a pass with a clear field in front of him. Therefore it passed on for what it is worth.

Wingless, Clawless, Egg-a-Day Hen Now Developed to Aid Production

Seen above is the Omaha "Wingless Hen," owned by Dr. R. T. Renwald, who believes the future "egg-a-day" hen will look like this. Other fantastic breeds have also been developed throughout the world.

New Breed of Fowl Is an Automatic Machine, With Nothing to Do But Produce Eggs on a Henry Ford Basis

FOR years the egg-a-day hen has been the dream of poultry fanciers. They have sought by careful attention to breeding to produce the perfect egg-laying bird—a hen that kept her mind solely on the business of laying eggs without taking any time off for moulting or brooding or scolding—or even flying over the fence to scratch up the neighbor's flower beds.

And at last, with the aid of science, the poultry fanciers have discovered the perfect egg-a-day hen. She does not fly over the fence because she is wingless. She doesn't scratch up the flower beds because her toes are clawless. She has no desire to sit for days and days on a setting of strange eggs which other hens had laid.

She is far too modern. Incubators attend to the hatching process nowadays. And so the wingless, clawless hen has nothing left to do but lay an egg a day.

That is nothing of cosmic significance, perhaps. But, if anyone is inclined to sneer at a hen without wings or claws let it be stated here that science expects such a hen to lay an average of 300 eggs a year and even 365 eggs a year or an egg a day. If that doesn't solve the riddle of the universe, at least, it makes possible cheaper "fried two, over," "medium boiled" and even omelets sur le plat!

The average hen, it seems, does not lay even 100 eggs a year. There have been "champion" hens that beat the 300 mark but they were exceptions to the rule. The hen usually stops laying for from twelve to sixteen weeks a year, while it is moulting.

During this period, hens have no interest in egg-laying, not even if a blue ribbon were dangled before them. They just go flying and gadding about, scratching up the seeds in nearby gardens and causing bad feelings among neighbors. A clawless hen, if nothing else, might be the means of bringing peace to people who plant geraniums, string beans and other worthy bits of vegetation in backyards adjacent to chicken coops.

But the new type of hen will do more good than that. By eliminating the moulting period and depriving it of the inclination to go on scratching tours, the hen, science expects, will settle down and concentrate on eggs.

Already such hens have been bred under the supervision of Dr. R. T. Renwald, laboratory technician for a poultry medicine and food manufacturing company in Omaha. Dr. Renwald, who believes the new breed will revolutionize the poultry industry throughout the world, claims that of four wingless hens, one has laid 315 eggs in a year, another laid 308, a third 290, and a fourth 287.

This is one of the strange and freakish accomplishments of science, which has created the seedless orange, the spineless cactus, the unprikkly alligator pear and smokeless powder. In fact, about the only freakish thing science hasn't attempted is to take the barbs out of barbed wire.

WOMAN KILLED. COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 24.—Mrs. Sarah King, 50, wife of the manager of the Columbus office of The Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company, was killed here late yesterday when she was struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Lola Hunter. The latter was learning to drive.

SCHOOL PROGRAMS MAILED TO PUPILS

Statements concerning the program for the coming school year were mailed out Friday to 251 junior high school students and to 405 senior high school students. It is announced by F. R. Woodruff, principal of Xenia Central High School.

School will begin session at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, September 3. Books will be on sale at the book shop on the first floor of the high school building.

Seventh grade students have received their assignments as to sections X, Y and Z which does not have anything to do with the grade standard of the student. Mr. Woodruff announced. The student is sent to his section alphabetically while the students of the eighth grade are sectioned by grades.

If the players were allowed to express themselves too vigorously however, some of them might insist on a larger bat, judging from the difficulty encountered in hitting the ball.

The suggestion may come from some quarters that a football with a seam on the outside would prove popular in high school football, as a preventive measure for coaches. The idea might appeal to Coach "Pinky" Wilson, of Central High School, as it might prevent the wear and tear on his nerves caused when one of the blue and white athletes fumbles a pass with a clear field in front of him. Therefore it passed on for what it is worth.

Wingless, Clawless, Egg-a-Day Hen Now Developed to Aid Production

Seen above is the Omaha "Wingless Hen," owned by Dr. R. T. Renwald, who believes the future "egg-a-day" hen will look like this. Other fantastic breeds have also been developed throughout the world.

New Breed of Fowl Is an Automatic Machine, With Nothing to Do But Produce Eggs on a Henry Ford Basis

FOR years the egg-a-day hen has been the dream of poultry fanciers. They have sought by careful attention to breeding to produce the perfect egg-laying bird—a hen that kept her mind solely on the business of laying eggs without taking any time off for moulting or brooding or scolding—or even flying over the fence to scratch up the neighbor's flower beds.

And at last, with the aid of science, the poultry fanciers have discovered the perfect egg-a-day hen. She does not fly over the fence because she is wingless. She doesn't scratch up the flower beds because her toes are clawless. She has no desire to sit for days and days on a setting of strange eggs which other hens had laid.

She is far too modern. Incutors attend to the hatching process nowadays. And so the wingless, clawless hen has nothing left to do but lay an egg a day.

That is nothing of cosmic significance, perhaps. But, if anyone is inclined to sneer at a hen without wings or claws let it be stated here that science expects such a hen to lay an average of 300 eggs a year and even 365 eggs a year or an egg a day. If that doesn't solve the riddle of the universe, at least, it makes possible cheaper "fried two, over," "medium boiled" and even omelets sur le plat!

The average hen, it seems, does not lay even 100 eggs a year. There have been "champion" hens that beat the 300 mark but they were exceptions to the rule. The hen usually stops laying for from twelve to sixteen weeks a year, while it is moulting.

During this period, hens have no interest in egg-laying, not even if a blue ribbon were dangled before them. They just go flying and gadding about, scratching up the seeds in nearby gardens and causing bad feelings among neighbors. A clawless hen, if nothing else, might be the means of bringing peace to people who plant geraniums, string beans and other worthy bits of vegetation in backyards adjacent to chicken coops.

But the new type of hen will do more good than that. By eliminating the moulting period and depriving it of the inclination to go on scratching tours, the hen, science expects, will settle down and concentrate on eggs.

Already such hens have been bred under the supervision of Dr. R. T. Renwald, laboratory technician for a poultry medicine and food manufacturing company in Omaha. Dr. Renwald, who believes the new breed will revolutionize the poultry industry throughout the world, claims that of four wingless hens, one has laid 315 eggs in a year, another laid 308, a third 290, and a fourth 287.

This is one of the strange and freakish accomplishments of science, which has created the seedless orange, the spineless cactus, the unprickly alligator pear and smokeless powder. In fact, about the only freakish thing science hasn't attempted is to take the bars out of barbed wire.

Farm Notes

COTTONSEED MEAL

GOOD PROTEIN FEED
Cottonseed meal when properly supplemented proved a satisfactory source of protein in a series of nutrition tests recently conducted by C. H. Hunt, associate in the animal industry department of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station.

Protein is the most expensive part of livestock feed. Consequently farmers are always looking for a good cheap source of protein to supplement home-grown feeds. Cottonseed meal is such a feed, but there is still much to learn about its proper use.

The protein of cottonseed meal, like that of most other plant substances, is incomplete and must be supplemented with minerals and animal proteins in order to produce best growth when fed to animals.

Cottonseed meal has the reputation of being toxic. This is unjust and is due to the fact that cottonseed contains a toxic substance, called gossypol.

After an investigation extending over a period of ten months and in which scores of white rats were used as experimental animals Dr. Hunt is satisfied that cottonseed meal is not toxic to these animals.

His investigations also show that if cottonseed meal is supplemented with a mineral mixture containing 40 per cent calcium chloride, and animal protein it becomes adequate for producing growth.

WOMAN KILLED.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 24.—Mrs. Sarah King, 50, wife of the manager of the Columbus office of The Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company, was killed here late yesterday when she was struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Lola Hunter. The latter was learning to drive.

Gets His Own Team

"Chuck" Collins, student of Knute Rockne, who has been head coach for three years of successful football teams at North Carolina University, is to have the job two years more. Under his tutelage, the "Tar Heels" have shown steady improvement, walking off with the state championship last year.

SCHOOL PROGRAMS MAILED TO PUPILS

Statements concerning the program for the coming school year were mailed out Friday to 251 junior high school students and to 405 senior high school students. It is announced by F. R. Woodruff, principal of Xenia Central High School.

School will begin session at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, September 3. Books will be on sale at the book shop on the first floor of the high school building.

Seventh grade students have received their assignments as to sections X, Y and Z which does not have anything to do with the grade standard of the student. Mr. Woodruff announced. The student is sent to his section alphabetically while the students of the eighth grade are sectioned by grades.

CHATTY GODDESS OF CAB BEATRICE BURTON, Author of: "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," "SALLY'S SHOULDERS," "MONEY LOVE," "LOVE BOUND," ETC.

READ THIS FIRST:

Charlotte Chatterton, whose nickname is Chatty, is a born gossip and busybody. She loses her job in Mrs. Mayberry's hat shop because she talks too much.

Her widowed mother, Mrs. Harriett Chatterton, a dressmaker, has a wealthy friend and customer, Mrs. Van Nuys. Through her Chatty gets a job in the hunch department of Mr. Van Nuys' bond house down town. There she meets a good looking young salesman, whom she once saw buying flowers for a pretty girl in a shop across the street from Mrs. Mayberry's hat store.

Billie Langenau, head of the filing department, tells her that the only girl in the office whom Jordan ever takes out is Agnes Herford, a plain, quiet girl who is Mr. Van Nuys' private secretary. But Chatty doesn't worry about this, because she knows Agnes sometimes lunches with Mr. Van Nuys, and she suspects her of being in love with him. Her mother makes her promise never to speak of this, because she unearths another office scandal, Billie Langenau and Sara, her sister, come to live across the hall from the Chattertons. Sara tells Chatty that Billie is separated, but not divorced, from a man named Brewster. Later Billie tells Chatty that, although she goes around with George Mayhew, another of Van Nuys' salesmen, he knows nothing of her marriage, and that there is no reason for her telling him, because he is not in love with her. However, Dave Jordan, who has begun to make love to Chatty, tells her that Mayhew is very much in love with Billie.

Chatty discovers that Pud, her young brother, is selling alcohol in Ben Tomlinson's drug store, where he works afternoons and evenings, and begs him not to. He says that Winnie Talcott has bought gin and alcohol from Tomlinson for months.

One Sunday Chatty and Dave drive out into the country to meet George Mayhew and Billie for a picnic. On the way out Chatty forgets her promise to Billie and tells Dave that Billie is a married woman.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XI

Dave Jordan was one of those wonderful people who know how to mind their own business.

And so he said nothing at all when Chatty stopped short in the middle of what she was telling him about Billie Langenau's marriage.

She could not even be sure that he had heard her.

For he was passing a gasoline truck on the left side of the road with great style and speed, and he did not even turn to look at her until they were ahead of it.

Then he gave her a quick smile. "I told and greased 'The Pride of America' last night," he said, "so you'd have a fast, smooth ride today. Pretty soon, after I sell a few more bonds, I'm going to surprise myself and buy a new car."

Chatty nodded, smoothing down the dark blue folds of her dress, as she followed him in the wind. "Billie told me that you boys who sell bonds can afford many cars and such luxuries the first few years you're in the business," she said, glad that they had changed the subject so easily. "She says that after five years or so you know a lot of people who buy bonds from you—and that then you make plenty of money. It's just the beginning that's so hard."

Dave Jordan grinned. "All jobs are the same," he answered. "If you hustle, you're bound to make a lot of money—that is, if you have any luck at all. Half of the time we fellows down at the office don't get half hustle. You see, most of us aren't married, and we can make plenty of money for ourselves without breaking our necks."

Chatty interrupted him. Whenever she had something important to say she always started right in to say it, no matter who was talking.

"Billie says that if—well, if George Mayhew wanted to get married, for instance, he'd have to marry a girl with lots of money or else his wife would have to work to keep up their home," she said firmly.

But just as firmly Dave Jordan said: "No, that's not true."

"Billie's mistaken about that," he went on, shaking his red head that seemed redder than usual in the brilliant sunshine. "George is making plenty of money right now to keep up a home. It wouldn't be exactly a palace, of course, any more than any home I could support just now would be a palace."

For a minute or two Chatty's brain was filled with the vision of the home Dave Jordan would have. She could see him just as he would look, sitting in his shirt sleeves, reading the evening newspaper under the warm, bright glow of a lamp.

"Any girl would be glad to marry YOU," he should think—even if she had to live in one room in a basement! Chatty could have bitten off her tongue the instant the words were out of her mouth.

She blushed deeply, and hurried to say something more. "What I mean is—that if a man is very nice, and lots of fun to be with—well, do you think all girls are crazy about money? Do you think girls ever really marry for money?"

He nodded. "Sure—I know they do," he said gravely. "I've known a certain girl for a long time, and she told me the other day that she wouldn't think of getting married unless a man in the case was making ten thousand dollars a year. And she meant it!"

"O—o—" Chatty's voice was very small and soft.

Something told her that the girl who wouldn't think of marrying a man unless he was making ten thousand a year was the girl she had seen with Dave Jordan on Easter Saturday morning, going into Tallman's flower shop.

And evidently Dave had asked her to marry him, and she had turned him down because he wasn't making enough money to suit her.

"And that's why he's free to spend his Sunday with me," she told herself. "That's probably why he kissed me the other night—because he can't kiss her any more. I'm just filling in for her—"

For a second bitterness flooded her heart. Then she forgot it in the look that Dave gave her suddenly, a quick turn of his handsome head.

"You're a sweet kid," he said to her in his brisk, slangy way. "I hope you're going to let me see a lot of you this summer. We'll 'gipsy' together on Sundays in the 'Pride of America,' won't we? I hate to spend a Sunday in town in the summer, don't you?"

Chatty always had spent all of her time, without thinking much about it. But now she nodded her head vigorously. "I always like the country," she said, "even when it rains—even when it's full of spiders and ants and 'Please Keep Out' signs."

Carl Laemmle of Universal, has been the recipient of considerable praise because of his determination to present the classics in picture form.

Not the least of these comes to the Orpheum Theater Sunday—Victor Hugo's immortal "The Man Who Laughs," which was done in such a fine manner by Laemmle that it won the praise of being better than "The Hunch Back of Notre Dame."

Critics who made this statement, compared Conrad Veidt, who has the name role in this Hugo number with the work of Lon Chaney, in the Notre Dame film, and found Constance Bennett, whose picture decorates this column today, is going to make "Son of the Gods" with Richard Barthelmess. She is a member of a well-known stage family.

Carol Lombard wears a dress in "The Racketeer" so tight that she doesn't dare sit down while she has it on. For her convenience the studio rigged up a plush-covered board, which can be regulated at any angle, and on which she can recline to get her rest while on location.

NEW TRUCK LAW WILL NOT AFFECT FARMER GRANGE LEADER SAYS

Farmers have lost none of their privileges under the new state law governing operation of trucks on the highways, according to C. A. Dyer, legislative agent for the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation and Ohio State Grange, who was in Xenia Friday for an address before local farm bodies.

Apprehension being felt that the custom of extending aid to another in farm work will be hampered by the law, is unwarranted, Mr. Dyer said.

"The farmer has just as many rights under this law, as he ever had to use of the roads," he said. "Of course he must not use his truck to the extent that it becomes a common carrier, but he can do occasional hauling for his neighbor without fear of prosecution. In case any state inspector causes the arrest of a farmer who is merely using his privilege of helping his neighbor, I advise such a person to take the case to common pleas court and we will provide him with legal counsel."

A question regarding the operation of the law was put to Mr. Dyer at the close of his address, the result of local agitation among farmers to oppose it.

This opposition took the form of a protest meeting which was held Thursday night. Another meeting was called for the third Tuesday in September.

DIVORCE SOUGHT BY WIFE; SUIT FILED; OTHER COURT NEWS

Alleging that he violently choked her, used violent and abusive language, called her vile names and violently threatened her last August 18, Sylvia Calvert has brought suit for divorce from Howard Calvert. She declares that he never bought any clothing for her and that her parents have been obliged to clothe her ever since her marriage, May 14, 1927. For three weeks prior to last May 18, the date of the alleged assault upon her, she avers that the defendant has remained away from home until late hours at night, and continuously refused to tell her where he had been. She asks for alimony and restoration to her maiden name, Neff.

SUES ON NOTE

Joseph Fox has sued Eugene and Obery Fox, the New York Life Insurance Co., and the Western Bank and Trust Co. for judgment on a note for $8181 and foreclosure of a mortgage on real estate in which the other defendants claim an interest, and to marshal liens.

ADMINISTRATOR NAMED

Frank Stevenson was appointed administrator of the estate of Eva Stevenson, and his bond fixed at $1,000.

SALE ALLOWED

Authority to sell stocks at private sale was granted J. A. Finney as administrator of the estate of Nannie A. Ross.

OHIO'S INCOME TAX LARGEST ON RECORD

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 24.—Ohio's federal income tax payments for the 1929 fiscal year totaled $121,821,512.04, the largest amount on record, the treasury statement revealed recently. The amount is a 7 per cent increase over 1928 and equals the nation's average.

In 1929 $73,483,259 came from corporations and $48,338,220 from individuals.

The Cincinnati district showed the largest increase, the 1929 figure being $49,569,493 as compared with $45,053,315 in 1928. Toledo district reported a decrease of 14 per cent in total collections, Columbus a decrease of 1 per cent and Cleveland an increase of 2 per cent.

Columbus collections amounted to $9,568,546 against $9,711,529 in 1928. Toledo collections were $18,441,183 against $21,556,222 last year. Collections in the Cleveland district were $64,517,994 against $63,565,931 last year.

The decrease in Toledo collections was attributed chiefly to removal of the excise tax on automobiles, a tax which usually was paid directly by the auto manufacturer and charged to the purchaser. Because of greatly increased production of Toledo-made autos it is believed the Toledo collections would have shown an increase had the tax remained on the statute books.

Removal of the same tax is believed partly responsible for the failure of the Cleveland district to show a larger gain.

Total Ohio internal revenue payments in 1929 were $142,497,217 of which $20,675,705 represented miscellaneous taxes.

ART, 'tis said, holds a mirror up to nature. Similarly, advertising holds a mirror up to industry. Every time you read the advertisements you get a glimpse of the world of merchandise, as a whole—on display for your information.

Can you afford to ignore this daily exhibition of goods and services? Not very well! Business changes rapidly. New and better products outmode old ones. Nearly every day some scientific improvement, some "better way" or new convenience is announced in the advertising columns of your paper. You shouldn't miss these things—they are milestones in the forward march of civilization. Adding comfort and smartness to the home—contributing zest and flavor to the science of joyful living.

NEW TRUCK LAW WILL NOT AFFECT FARMER GRANGE LEADER SAYS

Farmers have lost none of their privileges under the new state law governing operation of trucks on the highways, according to C. A. Dyer, legislative agent for the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation and Ohio State Grange, who was in Xenia Friday for an address before local farm bodies.

Apprehension being felt that the custom of extending aid to another in farm work will be hampered by the law, is unwarranted, Mr. Dyer said.

"The farmer has just as many rights under this law, as he ever had to use of the roads," he said. "Of course he must not use his truck to the extent that it becomes a common carrier, but he can do occasional hauling for his neighbor without fear of prosecution."

DIVORCE SOUGHT BY WIFE; SUIT FILED; OTHER COURT NEWS

Alleging that he violently choked her, used violent and abusive language, called her vile names and violently threatened her last August 18, Sylvia Calvert has brought suit for divorce from Howard Calvert. She declares that he never bought any clothing for her and that her parents have been obliged to clothe her ever since her marriage, May 14, 1927. For three weeks prior to last May 18, the date of the alleged assault upon her, she avers that the defendant has remained away from home until late hours at night, and continuously refused to tell her where he had been. She asks for alimony and restoration to her maiden name, Neff.

SUES ON NOTE

Joseph Fox has sued Eugene and Obery Fox, the New York Life Insurance Co., and the Western Bank and Trust Co. for judgment on a note for $8181 and foreclosure of a mortgage on real estate in which the other defendants claim an interest, and to marshal liens.

ADMINISTRATOR NAMED

Frank Stevenson was appointed administrator of the estate of Eva Stevenson, and his bond fixed at $1,000.

OHIO'S INCOME TAX LARGEST ON RECORD

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 24.—Ohio's federal income tax payments for the 1929 fiscal year totaled $121,821,512.04, the largest sum on record, the treasury statement revealed recently. The amount is a 7 per cent increase over 1928 and equals the nation's average.

In 1929 $73,483,289 came from corporations and $48,338,220 from individuals.

The Cincinnati district showed the largest increase, the 1929 figure being $49,969,493 as compared with $45,053,315 in 1928. Toledo district reported a decrease of 14 per cent in total collections, Columbus a decrease of 1 per cent and Cleveland an increase of 2 per cent.

Columbus collections amounted to $9,568,546 against $9,711,529 in 1928. Toledo collections were $18,441,183 against $21,556,222 last year. Collections in the Cleveland district were $64,517,994 against $63,365,931 last year.

The decrease in Toledo collections was attributed chiefly to removal of the excise tax on automobiles, a tax which usually was paid directly by the auto manufacturer and charged to the purchaser. Because of greatly increased production of Toledo-made autos it is believed the Toledo collections would have shown an increase had the tax remained on the statute books.

Removal of the same tax is believed partly responsible for the failure of the Cleveland district to show a larger gain.

Total Ohio internal revenue payments in 1929 were $142,497,217 of which $20,675,705 represented miscellaneous taxes.
